

Drys Expect Enforcement Soon, Bishop Cannon Tells H. L. Mencken

BALTIMORE, Oct. 12.—(AP)—In a first stage the wets said "They can't enforce it." In its second stage they said "They shan't enforce it," but now, in its third stage, we dries are doing the talking and what we say is "We will enforce it."

"Never before had I seen such enthusiasm as I encountered lately in the south and far west. I know, of course, that I was among Methodists, but that is immaterial. They represented fairly the general body of dries. The old doubts and hesitations are gone."

Declaring himself a life-long democrat, the bishop said he hoped that his church would not have to support Mr. Hoover in 1932, or that there would be what Mencken calls a "holy war in the south with drums rolling in the tabernacles and a watchfire on every hill."

"My hope," he commented, "is that the democrats will nominate a dry next year. I don't ask them to adopt a dry platform."

"All I ask for is a declaration for law enforcement, but I hope for a dry candidate—say William G. McDowell or Cordell Hull. If either is nominated then prohibition will drop out as an issue and the campaign can be fought on some other ground—say the record of the Hoover administration. If it comes to pass I'll vote for the dry democrat and against Hoover."

Of Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt the churchman said: "Let the wets take him. We don't trust him."

The bishop said he was "strongly in favor of making the buyer equally

Methodist Leaders To Visit Scenes of John Wesley's Work

Methodists from all parts of the world will attend a conference in Atlanta beginning Friday and continuing until October 26. The pulpit (lower left) used by John Wesley (upper left) in Georgia when he founded Methodism in America will be one of the relics viewed by the delegates. Bishop William F. McDowell (right), of Washington, will direct the conference.

Georgia—the birthplace of Methodism in America—will see a world pilgrimage of the followers of John Wesley next week.

From the four corners of the earth delegates will assemble in Atlanta for the sixth world-wide Methodist conference at which church problems will be discussed.

A visit to the Georgia coast, near Savannah and Brunswick, where Wesley first preached in America and where his brother, Charles, wrote hymns and sang, will close the conference.

Hoover May Speak.

If affairs of state permit, President Herbert Hoover will address the delegates by radio.

Church dignitaries from many lands are listed on the program. They include Dr. Toyohiko Kagawa, the "Bible Sunday" of Japan; Bishop Motozaki Akazawa, Japanese church leader; "Gypsy" Smith, internationally known English evangelist, and the Rev. Luke Wiseman, secretary of English home missions.

Bishop W. F. McDowell, of Washington, D. C., will direct the conference. One of the features of the program is scheduled for the evening of October 19 when Dr. Charles E. Scott, of Yale, and Dr. William McDougall, Duke University psychologist, will discuss the subject, "Correlating Religion and Science."

The large collection of Wesleyana at Emory University, Atlanta, will attract the attention of delegates. It includes the pulpit from which Wesley preached at Savannah, a volume of his diary written in code and telling the church founder's love story, and many of his letters and first editions of his books.

After the sessions in Atlanta the

REV. REMBERT G. SMITH ASSAILS CANNON'S COMMENT

Sparta, Ga., Oct. 12.—(Special.) The Rev. Rembert G. Smith, whose denunciations of the conduct and public utterances of Bishop Cannon in the past have brought him many times into the limelight, tonight issued the following statement concerning the interview given by the bishop to H. L. Mencken:

"Bishop Cannon has given an interview praising the prohibition record of President Hoover. He fails to state that the appropriation for enforcement under Mr. Hoover is by no means adequate for the task, being about $255,000,000 per annum short of what Dr. Doran said is needed."

"Concerning divorce, he says: 'I believe it is fair and decent to grant divorces for desertion, for infidelity and for drunkenness, but beyond that we should not go.' In this, Bishop Cannon misrepresents the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, which recognizes only adultery as a ground for divorce. Bishop Cannon well knows this and his statement is in contempt of the law of the church in which he is a bishop."

After the sessions in Atlanta the 600 delegates representing every branch of Methodism will journey to Savannah to stand on the ground where Wesley preached less than 200 years ago when Georgia was a colony.

In Savannah the visitors will see not only churches erected to the name of Wesley, but also public and private buildings bearing bronze markers placed there by his followers.

Wesley, who led a band of young men at Oxford called "Methodists" because of the regularity and strict methods of their lives and studies, was induced to come to America by James Oglethorpe, founder of the Georgia colony. He arrived in February, 1736.

Here he started the second "rise of Methodism." Today there are 105,000 churches with a membership of more than 13,000,000 and a constituency of 40,000,000.

This year's conference is the second to be held in the United States and the first in the south. Started in 1881 they have been held each decade since.

President Wilson was quick to show appreciation of the heroic deed on which Dwight Morrow had conducted the New Jersey campaign. The chaos shipping among the allied nations over shipping and supplies was steadily imperiling the success of the war, and the president was searching for a man who understood unity, co-operation and organization in order to name him as a member of the allied maritime transport council.

He chose Morrow. In two weeks' time Mr. Morrow had secured temporary release from the Morgan firm, had closed out other important duties, and was sailing across the Atlantic.

The allied maritime council had to establish the doctrine "One for all and all for one," and get the powers to enforce it. The first step was to follow the Morrow plan of getting at the facts. What were each nation's minimum requirements? What could each nation furnish others out of its own resources?

Endless Discussions.

Round table discussions went on almost endlessly. Finally a working agreement was reached for the allotment of ships and the distribution of supplies of all kinds. A control board was established to route food, war munitions and men from America and other countries.

Mr. Morrow did his full share and his associates had not hesitated to credit him most generously with bringing about results.

Mr. Morrow was in the first automobile load of men to enter the town of Lille after the Germans evacuated. He went into a hotel restaurant there and bought a big loaf of bread which he broke into three pieces. The only French words he or any of the party knew were "Liberte, egalite, fraternite!" Morrow shouted them, and

As soon as you catch cold, the pores close; perspiration is checked. Gases and waste can't escape through the skin. That's why your doctor's first advice in case of colds is a mild laxative like Cascara. Medical authorities agree it actually strengthens bowel muscles. Why resort to harsher things when Cascarets activate the bowels so quickly, so harmlessly and pleasantly—and cost only a dime?—(adv.)

PRINTERS WILL STUDY SWOPE BUSINESS PLAN
NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 12.—(AP)—Suggestion by Harold P. Winchester, of Albany, N. Y., that the Swope plan for broad changes in industrial management to prevent financial slumps in business be studied for application to the printing industry was debated here tonight before the sessions of the United Typothetae of America.

After thorough discussion, in which President Hoover's $500,000,000 National Credit Corporation for business restoration was commended by some of the speakers as a constructive proposal, the convention referred the Swope plan study to the committee on resolutions.

In his address on the Swope plan, which was recently proposed by General Swope, of the General Electric Corporation, Mr. Winchester said there was a need for a restriction of competition in the printing industry and declared that the Swope plan was a "logical, comprehensive scheme which goes to the heart of the present problem," and that it or some other kind of economic planning must eventually be adopted.

NAPIER UPHOLDS TALMADGE'S ACTS

Russell Declines To Comment on Ruling of Attorney General.

Attorney General George M. Napier has given his opinion in a letter to Governor Russell that the state cannot recover approximately $14,000 spent in hog sales by Commissioner of Agriculture Eugene Talmadge nor about $1,900 paid the commissioner's step-son in increased salary over a period of months.

Governor Russell today announced receipt of the letter without comment.

The governor, following the adoption of a resolution at the recent session of the general assembly requesting him to seek collection of the money spent by Mr. Talmadge in hog sales and in increased salary for John Peterson, a step-son, asked the attorney general to take such court action as necessary to carry out the state senate request.

The senate request was the outgrowth of investigations made by a special committee of senators and another by a house committee during the legislative session into the department of agriculture in which Mr. Talmadge was questioned at length about transactions involving the sale of hogs, money spent in watermelon and poultry sales and about the salary hike for Peterson, employed in the department as general utility man and inspector.

The senate resolution followed charges by the investigators that the $14,000 spent in an effort of the bureau of markets, under Mr. Talmadge's department, to boost hog sales with state money was spent "illegally" and that the increased pay for Peterson was improperly allowed.

Mr. Talmadge, appearing before the investigating committees, contended that under the law creating the bureau of markets, he had a right to spend the money in boosting the prices of hogs in an emergency in order that farmers might not lose money from their product.

He said he had a verbal opinion of the attorney general that he had the right to spend the $14,000 in this manner before he entered the hog business and that after that time Mr. Napier gave Governor Hardman a written opinion on the subject affirming his verbal ruling.

In his letter, the governor's office said Mr. Napier cited a number of legal reasons why Mr. Talmadge had the right to spend the money in efforts to stabilize the market, including the state law creating the market bureau.

Mr. Talmadge told the investigators, in sworn testimony, that he had spent the money participating in hog sales in guaranteeing shipments to meet a certain grade, commanding a specified price per pound. He said that when the hogs arrived at their destination they were below the standard guaranteed and he refunded the difference in price between that paid for the specified grade and the grade actually registered.

Mr. Talmadge also testified that the state lost money in connection with poultry shipments.

Frenchmen and Americans staged a brotherly little celebration then and there.

"Friendly American."

The peasants named Morrow "The Friendly American." He got on just as well with their superiors, Poincare, Briand, Tardieu and other prominent warriors and statesmen when he met them, and grew to have such an interest in the country and the people that though he knew no French, a Frenchman said, "He speaks the language of our hearts."

Mr. Morrow received a distinguished service medal from the United States for his war services and was decorated also by Italy, France and Greece.

(Tomorrow: Mr. Morrow as chairman of President Coolidge's aircraft board.)

Two Children Perish In West Virginia Fire
BERKELEY SPRINGS, W. Va., Oct. 12.—(AP)—Two small children of Ed Huyett were burned to death in a fire that destroyed their home here this afternoon. The father was burned seriously.

The fire started from gasoline that Huyett was using on a first floor porch. The children were sleeping on a porch above. The flames spread rapidly to the frame structure and Huyett climbed to the second floor porch.

The children, meanwhile, awakened and ran into the house, where they were trapped. Huyett was burned in attempting to rescue them.

FISH DEALERS' 'RULER' QUILTS JEWISH RACKET
CHICAGO, Oct. 12.—(AP)—Another of the royalty of racketeering has found the gyping hard.

Maxie Eisen, one of the fish market's racketeers, abdicated today as overlord of the Jewish Fish Dealers' Association and the Hebrew Butchers' Association in the face of an onslaught by the Kahlon ruling body of rabbis and lay leaders.

Eisen's action, the Kahlon said, if made in good faith, will probably cancel a ban on all kosher meats, ordered by the rabbis as a protest to Eisen's domination of the fish dealers.

The butchers' association was regarded by the rabbis as a means of enforcing this domination.

BUILDING CONTRACTS EXCEED $2,500,000,000

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—(AP)—More than $2,500,000,000 of public and semi-public works contracts were awarded last week. President Hoover's organization on unemployment relief was so advised today in reports from 38 states.

The total of such contracts reported since December 1, 1930, was increased to $2,517,899,646.

The projects reported included school and college construction, bridges, streets, sewers and rivers and harbors work.

LIONS CLUB TO HEAR TALK ON TAXATION

Taxation in its various phases will be the subject of discussion at the regular weekly luncheon of the Atlanta Lions Club at 12:30 o'clock this afternoon in the Henry Grady hotel. H. F. Long, who is here attending the National Tax Association meeting, will be the speaker.

Mr. Long is a national authority on tax problems and Ben F. Willis, treasurer of the club, said that his talk would perhaps be along sales tax lines. A music program will be given under direction of Clem Powers and Wallace S. Dillon, entertainment chairman for the day.

One apple a day isn't really enough!

ONE apple a day is good—but three a day is better. We moderns need fruit, both raw and cooked. And there is nothing better, nor better for you, than apples.

They have an alkaline effect on the body and correct acidosis just as oranges do. The human system needs, too, the vitamins B and C which apples supply. It needs the minerals, particularly phosphorus, in which apples are so rich. It needs the fiber and roughage they furnish and the malic acid so vital to the human body.

For health's sake, eat at least three a day and serve them in the many thrilling ways described in the Virginia Apple Cook Book—sent free.

NOTE: Be sure to buy Virginia Apples, heavier in weight, juice and flavor. Because of the limestone soil in which the orchards are located—because of the many sun-drenched days in which the honey on the trees, they have "suction," which other apples lack. Virginia Apple Growers, Staunton, Va.

In many homes, whole families are existing on the meager wages of a young son or daughter. Regular work must be found for others. That is the big job this year—to get jobs for the unemployed as well as to care for them.

'GANG SEPARATION IN FULTON SEEN

Gilbert To Confer With Campbell on Question of New Camp.

Possibility that misdeemeanor and felony prisoners on the Fulton county chain gang may be separated into distinct groups, at different camps, was seen at a special meeting of the county board of commissioners Monday afternoon. Dr. W. L. Gilbert, chairman of the committee on public works, was designated as a committee of one to confer with the commission of Campbell county with regard to building a new camp in Campbell county to be ready before January 1, when the merger of the two counties is to become effective.

There has been much agitation for segregation since Bennett Hall, 18-year-old misdeemeanor prisoner, was shot and killed while attempting to escape from the North camp.

Representative Homer Gullatt, of Campbell county, chief sponsor of the merger, appeared before the commission at its Monday session and stated that the Campbell board was willing to construct a new prison camp but that it would like to confer with the Fulton board before doing so. Commissioner Gilbert was named to confer with the Campbell body.

Chairman Walter C. Hendrix, of the Fulton board, indicated that the Campbell county camp would be used for white felony prisoners, with white misdeemeanor prisoners at Fulton camps.

At Monday's meeting, Chairman Hendrix was authorized to spend not more than $7,500 for improvements at the county jail. The renovations are already under way to give space for approximately 75 more prisoners. Thomas B. Mims, United States inspector of prisons for this district, appeared before the board and stated that if the federal quarters at the tower are improved that the government will pay 60 cents per day in-

Mrs. Glenn Asks Amos and Andy To Give Surplus Coins to Club Here

The Atlanta Penny-a-Meal Club has submitted a "propolition" to Andrew H. Brown and Amos Jones, and just to prove that practically everybody wanted part of Andy's money, the club asked him for his last three cents.

But Andy has been very careful of his wealth and so far has not replied to a telegram dispatched to him Saturday by Mrs. Thomas K. Glenn, president of the Penny Club, requesting three cents to help feed the unemployed here this winter.

And to further illustrate that Andy does have dealings with important people, Bobby Jones, Mayor James L. Key and Police Chief Beavers sent telegrams to the famous radio pair.

As a result, Penny-a-Meal collection boxes may be installed in the lunchroom operated by Brother Crawford, lighting and that very gruff fellow, the short order cook.

Poor old Andy—he bought a dog for a few cents, and things began to happen. The canine turned out to be a valuable animal and Andy received $35 for returning "Vanilla" to his owner. But Kingfish, Henry Van Porter and others of the Harlem gang set out to cheat in on that money.

To thwart the avaricious intent of Kingfish and the others, Andy bought himself some bright, brown shoes and other sartorial splendor—and found himself with a few cents left Friday night Andy and Amos discussed the remains of the fortune and wondered what to do with it.

And that was the way it all came about.

Atlanta's boys and girls are responding with enthusiasm to the idea of a Junior Penny-a-Meal Club, many having enlisted Monday, according to Mrs. Thomas K. Glenn and Mrs. James L. Dickey.

Miss Emma Scott, of Washington Seminary, reported Monday that every girl at the school, some 215, had signed up for the Junior Penny Club, agreeing to install penny boxes and look after the collection of the pennies in their homes. "We are 100 per cent in the Junior Penny Club now," she said.

"The girls are taking hold of the work seriously and with great enthusiasm."

The following boys and girls in addition to the Washington Seminary girls, are now on the Junior Penny Club honor roll, having pledged themselves Monday to install boxes and act as penny club treasurers in their homes:

John Otley McCarthy, Calhoun Witham, Bolling Spalding, Roy Dorsey, Thornton Kennedy, Omar F. Elder Jr., William Candler Jr., Josephine McLaughlin, Frank Wingfield Jr., Betty Yopp, Walter C. Hill Jr., Shirley Coppedge, Dugas McCleskey Jr., Jean Pentecost, Dorothy Haverly Grove, George Mizzell Jr., James Sibbey Jr., Elizabeth Winslow, Walter Turner Jones Jr., Julia Fleet, Arthur Burdette Jr., Sara Horne, Carlton McKinney Jr., George Baum, Ruth Elder, Marion Candler, Marjorie McNaughton, Vincent Allen Shipp, Rawson Haverly, Mary Campbell Everett, Lucy Cole Durham, Grady Black Jr., Dickey Stevens, Georgia Rauschenberg, J. M. Weiss II, G. Arthur Howell, Jack Discoway Jr., Grover Lamb Jr., Jackie Emily Weaver, Clark Howell III and Herbert K. Gargen.

Here is how junior citizens can enroll in the Junior Penny-a-Meal Club:

1. Notify Mrs. Thomas K. Glenn or Mrs. James L. Dickey at the Penny Club headquarters, 42 Edgewood avenue, that you will act as the Penny Club treasurer for your family, collecting the pennies for each meal between now and March 1, the pennies to be deposited in the family coin box or the unemployed. You can do this in writing or call at headquarters, or you can have your father or mother do it for you. Be sure your name, age and address are written plainly.

2. Whenever your coin box is full, bring or send it to headquarters where it will be emptied and replaced with a new one.

Boys and girls can also fill out the Junior Penny Club pledge appearing in The Constitution today and send it to Mrs. Thomas K. Glenn at the club headquarters.

Women of City Hall Induct Mayor Key Into Exclusive Club

Angels of the Atlanta Club, organization of women employees of the city hall, Monday night were one-up on the Imps of Hell, Inc.

Mayor James L. Key is to be inducted Saturday into the latter organization when E. F. Vogelphol, national president, and an initiation team descend on Atlanta to perform the ceremony. Monday night Key joined the Atlanta Club when the invitation was extended by Miss Peggy Osborne, newly-elected president. He will pay his dues, have a vote and enjoy all other rights and privileges extended regular initiates.

Mrs. Alonzo Richardson, executive secretary of the Atlanta Better Films Committee, who has offices at the city hall, was made club mother by unanimous vote.

Key installed the new officers and called on the women to do "even better in the service of Atlanta's public than you have done in the past." He lauded the efficient service the women render.

Miss Osborne succeeds Miss Grace West as president of the organization, and the retiring president was presented a handsome silver vase. Other officers inducted were Mrs. Mable Terry, vice president; Miss Vera Cooper, secretary; and Mrs. Eula Coleman, treasurer.

The ceremony was featured by a dinner at the Tavern tea room.

SCHOOL BOARD TO MEET TODAY

Definite action as to the decision of the board of education relative to the proposed waiver of automatic salary increases for school teachers and other employees of the Atlanta public school system is expected to be made this afternoon at the regular meeting of the board.

Members of the Atlanta Public School Teachers' Association held a meeting at the Bass Junior High school Monday afternoon, but Miss Allie B. Mann, president, announced they took no action relative to the suggestion.

Council finance committee members have asked that a joint committee from the teachers, the board and the finance body be named to iron out differences concerning certain policies. If the board sidesteps a definite decision today, it is expected it will refer to the joint committee the matter of salary increments.

The increments will be nearly $100,000 for the next year, if allowed.

Theater in Chicago Target of Bombers

CHICAGO, Oct. 12.—(AP)—Bombers late today carried their activities to the heart of the Loop and tossed a bomb onto the roof of the Monroe theater when the rush hour crowd was at its height.

The loud explosion shook the downtown district, frightened pedestrians and smashed windows in nearby buildings, but hardly disturbed the theater audience, police said. The reason, officials said, was that the bomb, supposedly of the black powder variety, expended its force upward, instead of smashing in the roof upon the hundreds in the theater.

The theater is a moving picture house at 59 West Monroe street, in a three-story building. It was the second theater bombing within two days and the twelfth since the Allied Independent Theater Owners' Association broke with the Chicago moving picture operators' union over the latter's demands that each theater must hire two operators each shift. On Sunday, the Northside Argonne theater was damaged by a bomb.

Family of 4 Slain On Maryland Farm

BERLIN, Md., Oct. 12.—(AP)—A farmer, his wife and their two daughters were found dead in their beds in their farmhouse late today, their heads battered in by an ax and the bodies saturated with coal oil.

The discovery was made by poultry farmers nearby who had missed the family since Saturday. A negro farmhand, Orphan Jones, 60, who was discharged Saturday, was arrested a few miles away and held for questioning.

The dead are Green Davis, 55; his wife Iva, 48, and their daughters, Elizabeth, 15, and Mary Lee, 13. The older girl was a junior in the Berlin High school and her sister a freshman. The family had been living in this section about six years.

The Davis farmhouse is located two and a half miles west of Berlin on the Ocean City road at a place known as Taylorsville. The section is isolated and communication in that part of Maryland is difficult.

The negro, according to officers, had $70 in his pockets when arrested at Ocean City and a pocketbook and several rings identified by friends as the property of the Davis family.

HOW LONG DO YOUR COLDS LAST?

ONCE you let a cold grip you, it may last through the winter. Check them at the first sneeze, simply by breathing Vapex.

Vapex is the inhalant discovered in England during a war-time epidemic of influenza. By a fortunate accident, it was found that the vapor of the ingredients now in Vapex kept certain chemists immune to infection. And almost immediately Vapex became the "modern way" to treat a cold. Now millions of people use it.

Especially for children's colds, Vapex brings safe, swift relief. And mothers put a few drops on the child's blouse to help prevent colds.

A few drops on your handkerchief during the day—a few drops at the ends of your pillow at night—that's the easy Vapex way of relieving colds. It's economical too. The $1 bottle contains one hundred applications.

Like an expensive gown, the effectiveness of Pebecco is not due to obvious things. It hasn't the frills and furbelows of sweet taste and foamy lather. Its tremendous effectiveness lies in the character of its ingredients—and in the cool lasting tang which is Pebecco's distinctive signature. 40% of Pebecco is an expensive ingredient not found in other tooth pastes—an ingredient put there because of its value in oral hygiene.

It is the thinkers who like Pebecco—the people who realize that irrelevant, candy-like tastes or extravagant claims in advertising cannot benefit the teeth—that it is what is in the tooth paste that counts.

State Tax System Changes Urged by Emory Professor

More Power for Georgia Officials, Abolishment of Arbitration Suggested at Conference Here.

Professor E. H. Johnson, of Emory University, addressing the National Tax Association in session here Monday night, recommended abolishment of arbitration, conferring of greater authority on state tax officials and the establishment of an auditor as a means of improving Georgia's system of taxation.

Professor Johnson's recommendations were made after he had declared Georgia's system of personal assessments was subject to an archaic system of arbitration if the individual objected to tax commission revisions, and that state authorities had too little authority to deal with county and municipal officials.

He pointed out the need for an auditor for ferreting out taxable property in stating that last year assessments for the state on bank deposits and notes totaled only $4,600,000, when one bank alone in the city of Atlanta had nearly twice that much on deposit.

The tax association, with more than 400 delegates from every state in the union and from Canada, Porto Rico and Hawaii, began a five-day session here which will end Friday with a joint meeting with the Southeastern Economic Association.

Clarence Smith, adviser to the state tax commission of Kansas, presided at the meeting. E. P. Toole, of Rhode Island, and Miss Lois Query, of South Carolina, were appointed to the credentials committee and Henry Long, of Massachusetts, was named chairman of the resolutions committee.

The delegates were welcomed to Atlanta by Governor Richard B. Russell with responses by Jack White, of the province of Ontario, Canada, and Philip Zuercher, of Indiana.

A resolution asking congress to pass legislation giving the several states power to tax property and business employed in interstate commerce will be introduced sometime this week.

Clifford W. King, attorney for the Oklahoma tax commission, and Melven Cornish, chairman of the commission, will sponsor the resolution jointly. Early delegates predicted a lively debate.

The King-Cornish resolution proposes that "the congress be requested to pass an act at the next session thereof authorizing and empowering the several states to levy and collect license, franchise, gross revenue, registration or other forms of taxes upon property and business employed in interstate commerce in the same manner that such taxes may be imposed upon like property and business under the constitution and laws of the given state."

The resolution carries a provision that the total rates of such taxes shall not exceed the rate of taxes levied by any state upon property and business employed in interstate commerce and that such property and business "shall be apportioned as to include by any one state the property and business located therein to the end that double taxation shall be avoided."

MAYONNAISE PLANT ESTABLISHED HERE

A modern, completely equipped mayonnaise and salad dressing factory for the production of Blue Plate food products has been established in Atlanta by the Wesson Oil and Snowdrift Sales Company, it was announced Monday.

"This new factory, with a capacity of more than 15,000 jars of mayonnaise daily and a pay roll amounting up into the thousands of dollars, is creating new outlets for railroad business and other allied local commercial lines," says Fred Wagner, factory superintendent. "Sugar, spices, condiments and other ingredients are purchased in large volume from Atlanta and Georgia concerns. Peppers and other farm products, not to mention the oil from the cotton staple, used at this plant are doing much to alleviate the prevailing market conditions for the southern farmer."

In the inauguration of this modern up-to-date plant the division office in Savannah has placed a strong business organization in Atlanta to create and inform both the trade and consuming public of the high quality products being manufactured here by the Wesson Oil and Snowdrift Sales Company of the Southern Cotton Oil Company for national consumption.

The organization from Savannah in Atlanta for this work consists of H. H. Robinson, C. Smith, A. M. Lubbo, A. C. Lindner, general sales representatives; J. C. Camp, local sales representative; Robert Walker, of the promotional and educational department; C. S. Montagne, of the public relations department, and four women home economists.

The new plant is being inaugurated with a special campaign, offering full size jars of Blue Plate mayonnaise to the Atlanta housewife free with the purchase of each quart of Wesson Oil for a limited time.

W. B. Spann, president of the Atlanta Clearing House Association, said Monday that New York bankers seeking to organize a half billion dollar credit organization had been informed that the Atlanta association "approves in principle" the undertaking.

He said a telegram to that effect had been sent to New York following an informal discussion of the plan at a meeting of officers of the association.

The plan in question is one being furthered in connection with President Hoover's by-partisan conference seeking to liberalize credits and release frozen credits in banks throughout the country.

Mr. Spann said the Atlanta organization is now writing more detailed information regarding the new plan.

Atlanta Hospitals Given High Rating By U. S. Surgeons

Eight Atlanta hospitals were given the "fully approved" annual rating of the American College of Surgeons announced Monday with opening of its annual clinical congress in New York.

The hospitals were the Grady, Crawford W. Long Memorial, Georgia Baptist, Henrietta Eggleston, Piedmont, St. Joseph's, United States Veterans Administration, and Wesley Memorial.

The congress announced that 68 cancer clinics in general hospitals and medical service in 80 industries have met the standards established by the surgeons' association. These have been designed for approval of the college and will be announced as soon as the survey is completed, it was stated.

Despite the financial depression, more hospitals than ever before have this year succeeded in meeting the high standard for personnel, management and equipment required by the American College of Surgeons for attaining to its list of institutions approved for care of the sick, the announcement reported.

Dr. Lutz, former president of the National Tax Association, which organization is holding its annual convention in Atlanta this week, is an outstanding authority on his subject and his address will be one of the outstanding events of the year.

Governor Russell, Mayor Key, Tax Commissioner Doyal and Comptroller General W. B. Harrison have been invited to hear Dr. Lutz, as have the Fulton county commissioners and tax committee and also the chairman and vice chairman of the finance committee of the city of Atlanta.

DRY GROUP ATTACKS PROPOSALS FOR BEER WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—(AP) Conditions in England are held by the American Businessmen's Prohibition Foundation to disprove the "claims" of American brewers that legalizing beer in the United States would benefit either labor or industry.

In a statement made public today through the Woman's Christian Temperance Union headquarters, the foundation said brewery profits in England have increased along with unemployment. The statement was sent to every member of congress.

REHEARING IS SOUGHT IN AUGUSTA RATE CASE

43 Exceptions to Report of Hopkins Filed by Utilities Company.

On 43 exceptions to the report of the special master, Stiles Hopkins, who held that rates fixed by the Georgia public service commission for the city of Augusta were not confiscatory, the Georgia Public Utilities Company Monday filed a motion for a rehearing in United States court.

The special master's report held that the rates fixed by the commission would provide a return of 7.3-2 per cent and that a test period of one and one-half to three years under the proposed rates should be tried. Exception is taken to the master's failure to point out that a return under 8 per cent is confiscatory.

Exceptions also attack the $1,063,000 valuation fixed by the commission on the Augusta properties, the company fixing a valuation of $1,528,356.

"The special master," the company said in filing its petition for rehearing, "seems to have reached the conclusion as to the probable net earning in the future on the theory that a downward tendency in prices of labor and commodities is in existence, instead of leaving it to the public service commission to fix such rates in the future if the downward tendency of such costs has been significant to make such rates compensatory."

No hearing date has been fixed but the commission is restrained from putting in the new rate schedule, fixed February 25, 1930, pending final outcome of federal court litigation.

EXCAVATION CONTRACT ON POSTOFFICE SUBLET

Nello Teer, of Durham, N. C., Takes Over Portion of Work From National Co.

Excavation work on the new post-office building will be done by Nello Teer, of Durham, N. C., it was disclosed in announcement Monday of subletting this portion of the construction contract by the National Construction Company, holders of the government's contract to build the foundation and tunnels.

Although workmen for the National Construction Company started building a barricade around the site last week and excavating was expected to be started Monday, indications are that the subletting of this portion of the contract may delay the start several days.

A the office of A. Ten Erck Brown, architect, and A. Buttl Jr., associate architect, it was reported that the plans for the superstructure were in the hands of the government, with Mr. Brown in Washington conferring with the authorities. Acceptance by the government of the superstructure plans and calling for bids on them will be the next steps in this phase of the work.

It is understood that the National Construction Company plans also to sublet the portions of its contract calling for construction of the caissons and the tunnels, and will build only the retaining walls. Government contracts require the original contractor to construct at least one portion of the retaining walls. Government contracts require the original contractor to construct at least one portion of the retaining walls.

Pile Sufferers

You Can End Your Torment Quick

Do you know the cause of piles is internal—and circulation of blood in the lower bowel?

That is the scientific truth about piles—the real reason why external remedies do not give quick, permanent relief, why cutting does not remove the cause.

Your itching, bleeding or protruding piles will only go when you actually remove the cause—and not a minute before. Salves or cutting can't do this—an internal remedy must be used. HEM-ROID, prescription of Dr. J. S. Leonhardt, the specialist, succeeds because it stimulates the circulation, drives out congested blood, heals and restores the almost dead parts.

HEM-ROID has an almost unbelievable record for sure, safe and lasting relief to thousands of pile sufferers. Don't waste time on external remedies or think of an operation until you have tried a bottle of HEM-ROID tablets. Jacobs' Drug Stores guarantee money back if they do not quickly stop all your pile misery.—(adv.)

IMPROVED RAILWAY SERVICE

While under existing conditions certain retrenchments have been found necessary in the transportation field, the policy of the Central of Georgia, along with other railroads, has been and will continue to be to serve its patrons satisfactorily, and to meet the needs of the nation's business with adequate and dependable transportation.

The movement of freight has been expedited to a degree not considered possible a few years ago, passenger trains have been speeded up, schedules have been better maintained, and other improvements in service have been made. The safety of both passengers and employees has been greatly advanced. Increased attention has been paid to selling railroad service and to making it even more courteous and efficient.

Public attention has been centered upon the application for an advance in freight rates, the urgent necessity of which has been fully presented. The public is entitled to know that while the rate case has been pending the railroads have been active in other directions to improve their situation.

The railroads are first in transportation and can be depended upon for satisfactory service, whatever the volume of traffic, so long as their credit and earning power permit.

Constructive criticism and suggestions are invited.

Peaceful Life Is Provided For Old Women by Home

Outstanding among the agencies given support by the Community Chest is the Home for Old Women on West End avenue, which is to participate in the division of funds acquired by the Chest in its forthcoming campaign. Above two residents of the home are shown enjoying a bit of air on the grounds of the home.

One of the most important consequences of the success of the present Community Chest appeal for support will be that 60 women who have passed the mark of three-score and ten, who have seen their friends and relatives pass away until they were alone in a world of strangers, will be assured of a haven for another year.

The Home for Old Women at 801 West End avenue, one of the 35 agencies of the Community Chest, is an institution that provides a pleasant home and tranquil surroundings for those women who have nowhere else to go.

"The Home for Old Women is based on a noble principle," explained Mrs. F. M. Farley, president of the institution. "We try to give each of our charges a real home. Old ladies left alone through death are given a place of refuge, where they share companionship with the others. Each is given an opportunity to carry out the diversions dearest to her."

The home is surrounded by spacious grounds and is comfortably furnished. Miss Dottie Harrison, the matron, sees that each of the women is contented and has what she needs.

A world of interesting reminiscences could be gleaned from that company if all of them would talk. Their experiences range from pioneering in the west in covered wagons days to sewing handbags for soldiers during the War Between the States. But they have this in common. Each of them has lived longer than her husband's life. Gradually these nearness have dropped away.

The ages of the old women range from 70 to deep in the 90's. They knit or crochet or read or do such light tasks as appeal to them.

There is, for instance, Miss Sally. She is only 72.

"Not old at all," she will tell you, "just reaching a nice age."

And Miss Sally is one of the most cheerful of the lot. Though she never has had any children of her own, she "mothers" the old ladies who are blue and lonely.

Then there's Miss Willie Mae. She's 94, and she can remember the boys marching away to the Mexican War. They are an interesting group, and say to get along with, Miss Harrison avows.

The Community Chest is providing for support of this valuable institution today, but this year, but the Chest itself must be supported if such charities are to survive.

from the market for at least a year, consists of 2,100,000 bales owned by the American Co-operative, 1,500,000 bales held by the Cotton Stabilization Corporation, and 200,000 bales held by the Staple Cotton Growers' Association of the Mississippi delta. The latter organization was not represented today, but will be invited to join in the movement. This would make a total of 3,800,000 bales to be withheld, the bankers' financing of an additional 3,500,000 bales would bring the total to above 7,000,000.

Adams expressed the opinion that the bankers might come in for an even larger share.

Morehead Wright, of Little Rock, recalled that similar action by the banks in 1914 had prevented cotton from dropping to 6 cents a pound.

Chairman Stone, of the farm board, said after the meeting that "the co-operative arrangement and understanding reached between the southern bankers, the cotton co-operatives and the farm board makes the outlook most encouraging."

Adams revealed that he had discussed the proposal at the White House with Stone and that it was at a suggestion made at that time that the bankers' meeting here was decided upon.

tion and its co-operating local associations will be arranged tentatively during the next few days so that when the final plans have been approved by the board of directors on next Saturday, the operation of the undertaking can be put into effect. It is said in his telegram to the 12 directors, Mr. Buckner said several steps should be taken pending the meeting. He asked each director (1) to consider appropriate names of men to serve on the one or more loan committees of the local associations to be formed in your district. (2) to ask the banks in their districts to indicate the amount of their subscriptions to the gold notes of the National Credit Corporation on the basis of 2 percent of their net demand deposits up to the legal limit at the last comptroller's call.

He told each that five forms would be forwarded, including articles of agreement of the local associations, suggested by laws for the local associations, subscription blank to gold notes, application blanks for loans, and suggested resolutions of the local association covering acceptance on loans and request on National Credit Corporation for advances.

STUDENT-KILLER GETS LIFE TERM

CROWN POINT, Ind., Oct. 12.—(P)—Perry Swank, the 15-year-old schoolboy, pleaded guilty before Judge Martin Smith today to the murder of Eugene Duckworth and was sentenced to life imprisonment.

The youth changed his plea of not guilty immediately after his trial was called.

Swank, who confessed he killed Duckworth while robbing the latter's filling station, and showed indifference to the crime after arrest, visibly paled when Judge Smith during his remarks preceding the sentence mentioned electrocution.

"If all killers were electrocuted," said Judge Smith, "we would have fewer crimes like the one to which you pleaded guilty."

As the sentence was pronounced, however, the boy's face broke into a broad grin. He turned to his attorney and shook his head vigorously. His parents sitting nearby showed no emotion.

Nature's Medical Marvel Is Astounding the Nation

IN this intricate and wonderful machine, the human body, continual chemical changes are taking place, either premature or natural, in which there is an unceasing reduction of some of the vital elements. From the very bowels of the earth—from Nature's great chemical laboratory—FERRAC is supplied with many of the most highly important elements to the perfect functioning of the human machine—two in combination that are truly a chemical triumph which man has never been able to duplicate. With the use of Ferrac the following results may be expected: A KEEN APPETITE; ELIMINATION OF FAULTY DIGESTION; ACIDITY; GAS; NERVOUSNESS; RELIEF FROM DEPRESSION; LOSS OF WEIGHT AND VITALITY AND GENERAL PHYSICAL INEFFICIENCY.

REMEMBER THIS

Since nearly 200 years ago when scientists learned that iron is a necessary part of the blood, physicians have prescribed it as a builder of health and vigor. But it is necessary that we get our iron from the right chemical compound. The mineral salts of iron have been found much better for yielding the nascent metal desired for the body than the organic compounds put up by plants. Sulphate of iron as found in Ferrac is such a ready-made mineral salt, to replenish the blood supply promptly when it has been drawn down dangerously low by illness or prolonged overwork or other causes. Hundreds of thousands of people suffer from a shortage of iron without ever suspecting why they are always so listless and tired. They envy the vitality, endurance and zest for living of stronger people and never suspect that the difference may be due to the iron supply of the blood. And little less do they realize that IRON MAY BE READILY ABSORBED AND USED BY THE BODY IF TAKEN IN THE FORM OF FERRIC AND FERROUS SULPHATE OF IRON SO WONDERFULLY AND UNUSUALLY COMBINED BY NATURE AND FOUND IN FERRAC.

It is made in the marrow of the bones. Iron Sulphate, as contained in Ferrac, goes straight to the bone-making cells in their stout bone cases, stimulates their activity and builds the blood supply as a result of iron in quality. Calcium, which is a highly important element in Ferrac, is the principal ingredient of the bones and plays an important part in the action of the muscles, nerves and glands. We know that the glands control many of the vital functions and its ability to direct their action, therefore, makes Calcium the power behind the throne in an immensely complicated array of functions.

NOTHING IMPOSSIBLE

Most of the things we treasure today were not made yesterday. They were made, over and over, by the hand of God. It was in London, England, that every word we heard from across the ocean. A few years ago this world would have been impossible.

With all the forces at our command we could not have made a single thing like what you have in your hand. It is a miracle of nature, and it is a miracle of science. It is a miracle of the human mind. It is a miracle of the human hand. It is a miracle of the human heart. It is a miracle of the human soul. It is a miracle of the human spirit. It is a miracle of the human will. It is a miracle of the human power. It is a miracle of the human love. It is a miracle of the human hope. It is a miracle of the human faith. It is a miracle of the human courage. It is a miracle of the human strength. It is a miracle of the human endurance. It is a miracle of the human patience. It is a miracle of the human perseverance. Purchase of Prison Farm By State Nearly Completed

Owner of Tract Agrees to Conditions as Set Down by State; Saving of $9,000 Seen.

Governor Russell said Monday that J. V. Kelley, owner of the property on which the state is to establish a new prison farm in Tattnall and Toombs counties, had agreed to a reduction of $1 an acre in price and other conditions specified by the chief executive in his tentative acceptance of the property during the recent legislature.

Mr. Kelley's acceptance of the conditions, the governor said, would save the state approximately $9,000.

The other conditions were that Mr. Kelley pay for the abstract and for insurance of the title, without any cost to the state.

The new farm contains about 6,000 acres.

Formal acceptance of the farm now awaits Mr. Kelley's delivery of the abstract and certificate of insurance, it was explained at the governor's office.

Governor Russell returned from New Haven, Conn., Monday, where he attended the University of Georgia-Yale football game Saturday. He will leave Wednesday for Yorktown, Va., to attend the anniversary celebration of the surrender of Cornwallis during the Revolutionary War.

He said he would not attend the barbecue at Warm Springs for Governor Roosevelt today.

Underwood Scores Former U.S. Officer For Striking Negro

The duty of an officer of the law is to protect prisoners rather than manhandle them, United States Judge E. Marvin Underwood impressed upon a temporary bailiff in a north Georgia county, who testified in federal court Monday.

Testifying against a negro, arrested for violation of the prohibition laws, the former bailiff admitted that he struck the prisoner after he had been handcuffed.

"Were you the officer who arrested this man?" Judge Underwood asked.

"No, sir," the witness answered, "but I was assisting the other officers."

"That is the most reprehensible conduct I've heard of in some time," Judge Underwood said. "The duty of an officer, and of others assisting an officer, is to protect a prisoner—not to beat him."

The negro said the officers and the temporary bailiff gave him the third degree to force a confession.

BAPTIST LEADERS WILL MEET TODAY

Pastors and church leaders of Atlanta Baptist Sunday schools and organizations will meet at the First Baptist church this morning for a conference in the interest of this year's Baptist co-operative program and south-wide "every-member" campaign.

The meeting here is one of a series of conferences which are being held over the state. The first was held at Athens Sunday where Dr. Fred F. Brown, of Knoxville, Tenn., secretary of the Southern Baptist convention, and James W. Merritt, of Atlanta, executive secretary-treasurer of the Georgia Baptist convention, were the speakers.

There were a total of 13 such conferences arranged for Monday, today and Wednesday in various sections of the state, and both men will attend each meeting.

At the meeting here plans are to be formulated for the co-operative program and for the canvass which is to begin November 29 and last through December 6.

SURGEONS DENOUNCE 'MEDICAL HI-JACKERS'

Need of Lower Costs for Service Stressed by Two Speakers.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—(AP)—War on "medical hi-jackers" who victimize an untrained public was advocated tonight by Dr. Allen B. Kanavel, of Chicago, in his inaugural address as incoming president of the American College of Surgeons.

Both Dr. Kanavel and Dr. C. Jeff Miller, of New Orleans, retiring president of the college, who preceded him on the program, turned a spotlight of criticism on the medical profession and reached ranks of the public that "there is plenty of room for improvement."

The two surgeons told the 5,000 medical experts gathered from the United States and abroad for the opening session of the surgeons' annual congress that a paramount problem confronting the profession is the need for reduction in the cost of medical service.

As a powerful weapon against charlatans, "medical hi-jackers" he called them, the surgeon urged that the attainments of modern medical science be taken out of the realm of professional secrets known only to doctors and made available to the general public.

Dr. Miller ridiculed criticism leveled against the medical profession by such men of letters as George Bernard Shaw and H. L. Mencken, but added:

"We are human beings exactly like the people who criticize us. We have our faults, our weaknesses, our limitations. We are not perfect. We are not angels from whom perfection can be demanded. Unscrupulous men are just as likely to be physicians as blacksmiths. Physicians are no more likely to make mistakes as other people, more likely, in fact, because medicine is not an exact art and is chiefly learned in the hard school of experience."

REV. SUTHERLAND WILL TAKE CHURCH

The Rev. J. W. Sutherland, member of the Capitol View Baptist church congregation and teacher of a Sunday school class there, Monday announced his acceptance of a call to the pulpit of the Whiteford Avenue Baptist church to be effective at homecoming exercises next Sunday morning when he will deliver his first sermon at the new pastorate.

The Rev. Sutherland was born and reared in Haleyville, Ala., and obtained his college education at Howard College, in Birmingham. His ministerial courses were studied at the Baptist Theological Seminary at Kansas City. His first pastorate was at Birmingham where he was active for four years. He was later at Kansas City and St. Louis. The last pastorate he held before coming to Atlanta was in Colbert county, Alabama.

Failing health caused him to give up active leadership and after a year spent in Florida, he came to Atlanta. The Whiteford Avenue church was established in 1925, under the leadership of the Rev. George Adolphus.

GEORGIA WILL GET FORESTRY FUNDS

Georgia will receive $2,170,211 of the $1,240,608.89 federal funds that will be made available this year from receipts of the national forests to be used for roads and schools in counties containing national forest lands, it was announced by the United States department of agriculture.

These funds represent 25 per cent of the net receipts for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1931, and are apportioned to the states in accordance with the sale of timber in those states. An additional $868,000 will accrue to Georgia from the 10 per cent for national forest roads and trails. The timber sales receipts for the last fiscal year amount to less than $5,000,000 as compared with $6,751,500 for the preceding fiscal year.

Confirmed Pants Thief Nabbed on 2d Visit

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—(AP)—Cap'n Cola Marshall, commander of an East river barge, was taking a siesta the other afternoon in his cabin. His pants, the only trousers on board, were draped over a chair near the door. To his horror, as he lay, half asleep and half awake, he saw an intruder enter, tuck the pants under his arm and depart. In his trouserless condition the Cap'n forbore to take up the chase, for, although the pants contained $8, the Cap'n values his modesty higher.

Today, under similar circumstances, the Cap'n heard a noise at the cabin door, aroused himself and donned his new trousers, this time pursuing the thief into the arms of the police. In court he identified the fugitive as the one who burglarized the original breeches.

BAPTIST PREDICTS SOUTH TO SPLIT

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—(AP)—Dr. W. J. McGlothlin, president of the Southern Baptist Convention, said today that nomination of a "wet" candidate would split the democratic party of the south in the next presidential campaign.

"In my judgment," he said, "the south will support prohibition vigorously, perhaps just as vigorously as in the last campaign. Nomination of a wet candidate by the democrats would have the effect of splitting the party in the south just as it did in the last campaign."

Dr. McGlothlin is in New York to assist in the dedication of a new church.

PLOT TO KILL PRESIDENT NIPPED IN ARGENTINA

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 12.—(AP)—Two men were under arrest today on charges of complicity in what police said was a plot to assassinate Provisional President Jose Uriburu.

They were Ramon Arias, described as a chauffeur to a former minister of public works, and his brother, Jose, who was said to be a Cuban. Police said Jose Arias confessed he had planned to shoot the president in his apartment by sniping from a neighboring house and had been practicing on a rifle range at Rosario.

FRANKLIN REDUCTION SETS NEW LOW PRICE

Franklin Automobile Company, of Syracuse, N. Y., announces, effective today, new low prices on current models as low as $1,708 for the transcontinent sedan, with similar reductions on 21 other types comprising the complete de luxe and transcontinent lines.

This action establishes the lowest sedan price in the company's 30 years of manufacture of air-cooled cars. It brings this base price under $2,000 for the first time and puts Franklin in the position of the lowest priced fine car on the market. The amount of the reduction ranges as high as $300, representing 22 per cent below previous list prices. Price of the de luxe models now start at $2,895 for the sedan.

Reduction applies on the very latest production, it is emphasized, which constitutes Series 15 Franklins, incorporating the airplane-type air-cooled motor and the latest body features, along with all the mechanical refinements made within recent months.

The new scale of Franklin prices accomplishes the aim of the Franklin company, inaugurated two years ago to introduce their established fine car standards at prices practically on a par with the medium price field. Coming coincident with the launching of a national newspaper advertising and promotional effort which is meeting with excellent success, the new price reductions should extend still further the sales of America's only air-cooled car, executives state.

STOWER APPOINTED OFFICER OF LEGION

Quincy Melton, state commander of the American Legion, Monday appointed Bob Stower, of Atlanta, commander of the fifth Georgia district and Alex Fawcett, of Savannah, first district commander.

Stower was named to succeed Frank Haas, formerly of Atlanta, who has moved to Massachusetts. Fawcett was named to succeed Homer C. Parker, of Statesboro, recently elected to congress from the first district.

The American Legion does not allow a political officeholder to be an officer of the Legion at the same time.

RUSSIAN COTTON CROP SAID NOT ALARMING

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—(AP)—Reports of an 80 per cent increase in the Russian cotton crop are being discounted at the agriculture department's bureau of agricultural economics.

It has information that the Soviet crop will be larger than last year, but the bureau believes that the increase will be only a moderate one and "not in keeping with claims made for it."

The bureau pointed out that the 1930 production once was estimated as high as 2,050,000 bales. Later estimates by the International Institute of Agriculture at Rome, however, scaled it down to about 1,600,000, only slightly higher than the peak of 1,512,000 bales reached in 1915-1916. The bureau itself estimated the production at 1,850,000 bales.

...sparkling vitality and a clear skin
reflect rich, red blood cells

"It is good of you to say those nice things," she replied.

Some people just "bubble over" with vitality... they inspire compliments.

Nature has its own way of making a strong body and a clear skin... by its use of the red-blood-cells.

So often the pressure of work and worry or some sickness "burn up" these precious red-blood-cells—then the hemoglobin percentage begins to fall and we wonder "what is the matter?"

If this is your trouble, why not take steps to overcome it—remembering that a "tired feeling" may be a warning... so are pimples, boils and paleness.

A general run-down condition means a lack of normal resistance to infection and disease.

A lagging appetite often leads to underweight and ill health in various manifestations.

You cannot be low in strength and be happy—let's be happy.

For generations S.S.S. as a tonic has been helping people gain New Strength, better health and happiness. Its successful record of over 100 years in restoring strength and vitality to the blood surely warrants your giving it a good trial.

Why not start taking S.S.S. today?—the larger size represents a price saving.

Why you should be interested in your Blood Count

(Left) Microscopic view of healthy red-blood-cells. They carry nourishment and oxygen to every part of the body—they also remove impurities from the tissues.

(Right) Weak red-blood-cells—only 60 per cent of normal strength. Such a condition is often responsible for body weakness, paleness, low complexion, pimples and boils.

Don't let them count you out!

NOW!—GET RID OF FAT A POUND A DAY ON A FULL STOMACH

Do Just These Two Simple Things

Fat Melts Away

NO tiring exercise, no starvation. Instead, a full stomach and never a hungry moment! Yet fat melts away. You can easily lose from four to seven pounds weekly, see the coarse lines of fat replaced by the refined lines of slenderness—and feel better than you ever felt before in your life.

WHAT YOU DO

There are just two simple things you do: Clear your system—and keep it clear of waste matter, toxins and depleting poisons with ordinary JAD SALTS obtainable at any drug store. Start with a teaspoonful in a full glass of water tomorrow morning—a sparkling and pleasant drink.

Then EAT YOUR FILL—as much as your appetite can stand—of meals consisting of the following foods:

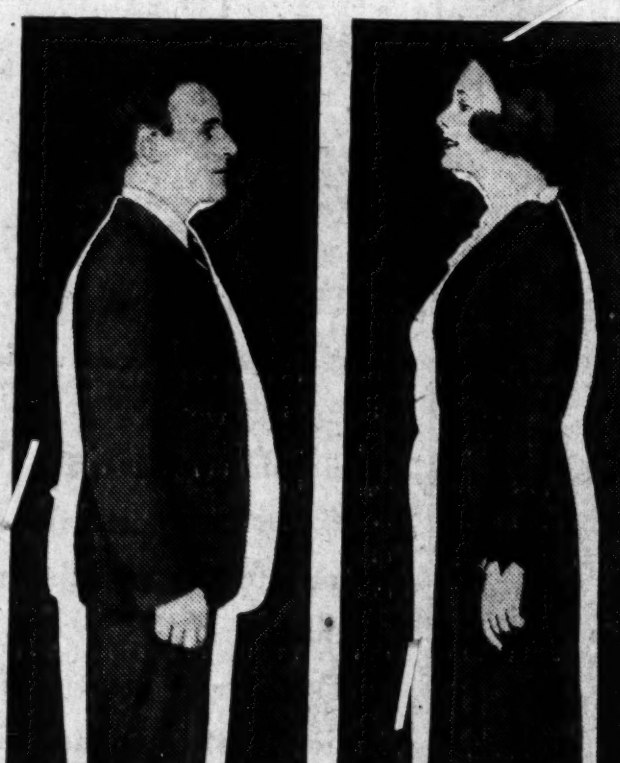

At breakfast eat two oranges, or the juice of two oranges. Eat also two slices of toasted whole wheat or bran bread. Eat rolled oats (with milk, not cream).

At luncheon eat a good size piece of lean meat, then as much spinach, lettuce, sauerkraut, boiled cabbage, green peas, broccoli or fresh turnips you can eat. EAT ALL YOU CAN COMFORTABLY HOLD OF these foods. For dessert eat any fresh fruit: cantaloupe, berries, apples, sliced oranges, pears. Substitute turnips for potatoes. Substitute lean meats—beef, chicken, veal, white fish, trout, bass, etc.—for pork or any fat meats.

At night, have another FILL-UP—FULL meal as above. Cut down on butter and sweets—eat half of what you eat now. That's easy. For with your stomach full of other foods, you'll never notice it. Drink water or not as you like.

4 TO 7 POUNDS
GONE IN WEEK

At the end of a week, you'll see the

scale down four to seven pounds—according to how much overweight you are—from what you weighed the day you started. Your health, too, will be better. You'll be more active, more vigorous than perhaps for years. Your friends will soon begin to notice your increasing slenderness. You'll soon avoid the embarrassment of being called fat or bulky. And—you'll do it with NEVER A HUNGRY MOMENT!

If in doubt about this safe and simple way, ASK ANY DOCTOR. Show him this article. Ask him whether or not it is safe and sure. It marks the latest findings of scientific men in the field of weight reduction. For it performs two necessary and important functions.

The JAD SALTS clear the bowels and system of the excessive toxins most overweight people have. The change in diet—the FILLING OF THE STOMACH TO ITS LIMIT—with foods that turn to energy instead of fat, decreases the weight day by day. The salts build up your health. The change in food eases off the fat.

Start today. Clip out this dietary and save it. Get big package of ordinary JAD SALTS for the cleansing part of the method at any drug store. A large bottle costs less than a dollar.

*Note particularly—the salts are urged purely as a poison-banishing agent—not as a reducing. The change in food does the work—(adv.)

State's Versatility Shown By Georgia Products Week

Georgia's lack of selfishness is one of the reasons why the state is so rich in products. It is not that the people are why they have been slow in becoming conscious of "Georgia products," R. A. Kline, general manager of Davison-Paxon Company, said Monday. "And I should like to repeat: Regardless of where you buy, be sure to buy Georgia products."

"Georgia Products Week" was launched by the state bureau of markets and received the endorsement of Governor Richard B. Russell Jr. and Commissioner of Agriculture Eugene Talmadge. And Monday found thousands of Atlanta people interesting themselves in more than 60 displays setting forth the manufacturing ability in the state.

It was a comprehensive display that Davison-Paxon Company made of the six floors of the building. From basement to roof the space was dotted with placards which called attention to Georgia products. Show windows were decorated with special arrangements bringing out the variety of high-class merchandise.

Although the interest of the buying public was apparent—in some lines of Georgia products the sales Monday exceeded the usual figures for one week—the shoppers will become more interested as the week goes on, Mr. Kline in giving out reports on sales said that in several lines the demand was at least twice that of an ordinary day.

"But we aren't as interested," Mr. Kline said, "in the amount of Georgia products we sell today or this week as we are in the interest shown in the displays." On that point he said that the important thing is to cause the public to give first choice to goods made in this state.

"You may be sure that Georgia products are just as fine as those of any state in quality and beauty," Mr. Kline added.

"But people haven't become conscious of Georgia products. They seem to be lacking in a pride of the amazing number of things grown here, and that feeling of 'family' dealing will cause people to become acquainted with the manufacturing in the state."

Mr. Kline insisted that the important thing is not where to buy, but what to buy, and people were urged to purchase Georgia products, regardless of where they trade. He called attention to the fact that more Georgia goods are sold in New York, proportionately, than are sold in Atlanta.

One illustration of the out-of-state demand for Georgia products was the sales of more than 2,500 chairs made by one Georgia manufacturer, said Mr. Kline, who said that Davison-Paxon Company and Macy's in New York in recent months.

"Still our Georgia people buy goods that are more from states and which are certainly no better than those made here," Mr. Kline asserted.

The state bureau of markets continued to receive endorsement from business leaders, and it is believed that more interest will be seen in specific demands for Georgia-made goods. Indirect displays at Davison-Paxon Company showing various articles in actual manufacture drew the attention of people in great numbers. At one time Monday the Peachtree sidewalk in front of the store was blocked by the gathering.

Mr. Kline said that other organizations would find it to their advantage to insist that buyers choose Georgia-made merchandise, "thereby aiding to cut down imports from other states."

Gray Hair

Best Remedy is Made At Home

To half pint of water add one ounce barbo compound and one-fourth ounce of glycerine. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it at home at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. It imparts color to streaked, faded or gray hair, makes it soft and glossy. Barbo will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off.

Looking at Life by The Observer

"Hold That Line!"

Out there shouting yourself hoarse, pounding some perfect stranger on the back, forgetting dignity, years and everything... because the boys wearing your colors are holding that line!

In there a thrill in all the world like it? And how much greater that thrill will be when your own boy is out there, holding that line! Isn't that something to look forward to?

And to know that your boy, when his time comes, will be out there on the field, doing his part, is only a portion of the story. During all the years thereafter that fine boy of yours will do a better job of holding the line in everything he undertakes... because of the college training you are planning to give him.

No question about it. Facts prove it. It takes twelve long years to send a child to and through high school. Only four years are required to complete the average college course. But those four years, in the endowment they will give your boy for future success, are 180 per cent more valuable than all those previous twelve years put together.

Each year of his productive life your boy should average $1,800 more in income because of this investment you are preparing to make in his education. In forty years the dividends your boy will collect on your investment should total $72,000.

Something to think about, isn't it? And if you are the father of a boy believes you are, you aren't going to be content just to think about it. You know there are too many things that can happen. You will want to do something right now to absolutely insure your boy his chance. And you can do something, at once, very easily, through one of the several Pacific Mutual education plans. Any plan you may select will be positively sure; it will cost you very little; it will place the resources of a $177,000,000 corporation behind your promise to your boy that he will have his chance. Why not call me up now, or mail the coupon, and let us talk it over!

ELECTRON MYSTERY ATTRACTS SCIENTISTS

Professors Meet in Rome To Seek Solution of Atomic Secret.

ROME, Oct. 12.—(AP)—A group of 50-odd from the world's most noted scientists, including Mme. Curie and six other Nobel prize winners, went back to the blackboard and chalk of their school days here today in an attempt to bring a solution of the mystery of the electron a step nearer.

One after another, the world-famous professors sketched their theories in algebraic expressions, elucidating electronic movements.

English and German scientists occupied the first session today of the meetings, which will last a week. Professor N. F. Mott, of Cambridge university, said a whole new system of mechanical laws must be devised to govern mysterious actions of the electrons. He inferred that the laws of gravity, momentum and velocity are almost useless when applied to the unknown world within the atom.

The subject was so technical that several in the audience confessed later that they only understood part of it or none at all.

$135 Suits, $275 Belt Buckles Figure in Tax Trial of Al Capone

BY RAY BRENNAN.

FEDERAL BUILDING, CHICAGO, Oct. 12.—(AP)—What the well-dressed gangster wears, including a $135 custom-made suit and $275 diamond belt buckle, was brought out in full detail today at Al Capone's trial on income tax evasion charges.

Also, the prosperous gangster is expected to do his Christmas shopping early, extensively and without stint, the testimony of a dozen Chicago department store clerks indicated. Capone, for instance, was said by the clerks to have selected such gifts for friends as $400 silverware sets, $150 overcoats and $20 beaded bags by the score.

Capone, biggest gangster of them all, was said by the clerks to ordinarily wear about $700 worth of fine raiment. His customary dress, according to the testimony, included a $27.50 shirt with $1 monogram, $4.95 tie, $2 collar, $135 suit, $150 overcoat, $275 belt buckle, $10 suit of silk underwear, $20 hat, $20 shoes and $2 socks.

Because he usually was busy with pressing affairs—which the prosecutors charge were gambling, liquor and vice—Capone bought his fine quality suits by the half dozens and his expensive shirts in even larger numbers, the clerks said.

And when the testimony was completed for the day it was revealed that

Capone started out in life at a rather lowly position—tending bar in a saloon at Coney Island, New York. That evidence was given by Henry E. Keller, of Miami Beach, Fla., who built a boat dock on Capone's winter estate and often lunched with "Mr. Al."

The testimony appeared to interest Al not at all. He stared moodily at the ceiling or into space, drummed on the counsel table and ate candy mints. The troubles of his bodyguard, Philip D'Andrea, who accompanied Capone to court every day last week and finally got himself into jail Saturday for carrying a pistol, appeared to perturb the scar-faced, 260-pound defendant. Capone was absent when Judge James H. Wilkerson lectured D'Andrea before the income tax case resumed but his attorneys told him all about it.

Judge Wilkerson continued the suave, bespectacled D'Andrea's case until tomorrow, but indicated he would hold the bodyguard in contempt. D'Andrea went back to his jail cell, deprived of benefit of bonds. Capone himself once served a year in a Pennsylvania jail for "gun toting."

Capone's taste in automobiles, as well as dress, was expensive, other testimony showed. One motor car—it was not revealed whether it was the one equipped with a steel body to keep out machine gun bullets—was said to have cost him $12,500. Another salesman said he sold Al a car for about $5,500.

Nor was the big gang boss stingy in buying furniture for his Chicago hotel suite and his two homes, clerks testified. Jean Reives, a bookkeeper, testified Capone bought $7,280 worth of over-stuffed davenport, draperies, vanity dressers and mahogany tables for his $40,000 home at Palm Island, Florida.

Chinese rugs for the Palm Island estate and the Prairie avenue Capone home in Chicago were listed by Paul M. Mincer, a rug salesman. Mincer said Al bought some for his Lexington hotel quarters too.

The defendant's appearance in court seemed to uphold the department store clerk's testimony—today he wore a new green hat, a grayish overcoat with brown velvet collar, dark gray suit, bright yellow shoes, and a diamond-flecked watch chain extended across his portly vest.

MACDONALD DEFENDS SELF BEFORE LABOR

EASINGTON, DURHAM, England, Oct. 12.—(AP)—In one of the most eloquent appeals of his career, Ramsay MacDonald tonight asked the Durham miners to send him back to the house of commons as a common laborer to help build the dam against national and world chaos.

The prime minister, heard Great Britain's problems to his simple hearers, warning them especially of the dangers of currency inflation. He reduced the complex problems of national and international affairs to "simple problems of housekeeping—government housekeeping."

"Unless you make ends meet you are going to chaos and destruction," he said.

Under the lash of criticism to which he has been subjected since he formed the national government, the prime minister, with passion and eloquence that roused bursts of applause, declared his loyalty to the cause of labor.

"I haven't changed a single iota of my principles," he asserted.

His birth dictated those principles, he said. They were in his bones and "I shall be labor at my death."

Replying to those who have criticized even his early work for the labor party, the prime minister mentioned his wife, who has been dead many years.

"In those days we had to pay for the postage of the labor party," he declared. "We bought out of our own pockets—my wife and I—the very note paper upon which labor's work was done."

"You borrowed our coal shuttles to sit upon at labor meetings at our home. Now you criticize the men who exercised their will power and conscience in a time of national crisis."

MOONEY FRIENDS SEEK CALIFORNIA BOYCOTT

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 12.—(AP)—Tom Mooney, whose conviction of the San Francisco Preparedness Day bombing in 1916 resulted in a controversy that has raged since he was imprisoned for life, today sought a worldwide boycott of California products because of the state's refusal to grant him a pardon.

His plan, which also suggested that his many sympathizers discourage tourist travel to this state, was outlined in a letter to a mass meeting in the civic auditorium here yesterday. The meeting was called to lead advice to the drive for a pardon. Mooney suggested in his letter that an "intensive, worldwide agitation drive should be set in motion at once."

SON OF REP. SUTTON DROWNED IN MACON

William Sutton Jr., 17, loses
Life While Swimming in Lakeside Waters.

MACON, Ga., Oct. 12.—(AP)—William A. Sutton Jr., 17-year-old Mercer University freshman of Moultrie, was drowned late Monday afternoon in the calm waters of Lakeside a few minutes after his companion, a Mercer professor, had shouted a warning that he was swimming too far from shore. His body was recovered late tonight.

Sutton, who was the son of Representative and Mrs. William A. Sutton, of Colquitt county, was a Lakeside swimmer. He was seen by Mercer professor of romance languages, a few minutes after he had been spotted by the staff of the Mercer Club, the school's weekly paper. The two sat on the bank at the far end of the lake, away from the pavilion, and fished, Major Ferguson said later.

"It was very hot," the major said, "so we took off our clothes and went in the water. The boy started swimming out toward the middle of the lake, but I stayed closer to the shore. When he was out in the middle I shouted to him to come back. I was afraid something would happen. He either did not hear or paid no attention, and after he had swam about 20 feet farther he threw up his hands and shouted. I thought he was joking, and called to him to come back, and came up again struggling. I started calling for help and swam toward him. I lost sight of him and came back to get help."

A boatman rowed Major Ferguson to the spot where the boy was last seen. Others were called, and about 10 minutes after the boy had gone down in the 15 feet of water, J. B. Riley Jr. dived until help was called from town.

Sutton was an outstanding freshman at the university. He was one of the 50 Georgia high school students to receive honorary scholarships to Mercer this year. He graduated with honor from the school's weekly paper, and last summer was assistant clerk in the Georgia house of representatives.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 12.—(AP)—Jack G. Dowdy, former salesman for a paper mill and member of a prominent family of Commerce, Ga., was sentenced Monday to 10 years in prison when he pleaded guilty to a charge of robbery.

Circuit Attorney Franklin Miller said he had received appeals in Dowdy's behalf from two St. Louis congressmen, who wrote at the request of Congressman C. H. Brand, of Athens, Ga.

Request for leniency, Miller said, were based upon the previous good record of Dowdy and the fact the two robberies to which he pleaded guilty were committed while Dowdy was in jail.

"The usual penalty for the offense is the usual penalty for the offense," the judge said.

JACKSON, Miss., Oct. 12.—(AP)—Severely criticizing his self-appointed state tax commission for alleged loose regulation of public service corporations, Governor T. G. Bilbo this afternoon urged the extra session of the Mississippi legislature to take a hand in the matter.

"These companies are running wild in Mississippi," the governor said in a special message read to a joint assembly of the house and senate late today. "Up to this good hour none in authority has dared to cross their path."

Governor Bilbo asked the legislature to memorialize the tax commission to make assessments of the companies conform "in justice" to the valuation of the companies, which he alleged was not being done by "my own state tax commission."

MRS. CARRAN CLINGS TO STORY OF SLAYING

Denies Having Seen J. E. Smith, Sought as Witness, Since Last July.

FAIRBURN, Ga., Oct. 12.—(AP)—Mrs. Romie Carran, detained in connection with the slaying on September 21 of her husband, Charles M. Carran, Jacksonville, Fla., accountant, was quoted tonight by authorities as saying she had not seen J. E. Smith, sought as a material witness, since last July.

Sheriff Ed Creel, of Campbell county, said, however, that he doubted her story.

Carran was found beaten to death near a lonely country road not far from Fairburn early on the morning of September 22. Mrs. Carran told a short distance away that she and her husband had been attacked by negro highwaymen and her husband slain.

Later, Creel said, she told officers a man knew only as "Bud" James had accompanied her to the vicinity on the day preceding the slaying to search for her 10-year-old daughter by a former marriage.

The sheriff left Jacksonville on September 17, Creel said. On the same day Smith, a salesman, disappeared from his home there and has not been heard from since.

"Mrs. Carran's description of James is the same as that of Smith," the sheriff said, "and we believe that Smith, if ever found, will be able to throw much light on the case."

The sheriff said he attached importance to a detail of Mrs. Carran's story of events preceding the slaying, in which a discrepancy had been found.

"Mrs. Carran said she drew $200 out of a bank in Jacksonville on September 17."

"This was the day Smith disappeared. In Jacksonville I made a check and learned that she had withdrawn $300, and not $200. I asked her what had happened to the $100. She said she bought a dress, some hats and shoes and paid a servant at her house. I found that the clothing was bought on credit and that she was paid only several dollars. What happened to the $100?"

The sheriff said Mrs. Carran told him she had "not been on speaking terms with Smith" since last July. She said she bought a dress, some hats and shoes and paid a servant at her house. I found that the clothing was bought on credit and that she was paid only several dollars. What happened to the $100?"

Mrs. Carran spends much of her time in jail reading and writing. She is held at the request of coroner's jury as an accomplice or accessory. She is the only woman prisoner in jail and has a ward to herself. The ward adjoints the men's ward, and the other prisoners play cards between the bars, Creel said.

WHITE FAWN

by Olive Higgins Rea

INSTALLMENT XXXVIII.

She had considered going away. If she were out of sight, out of range, it would hurt less to give Barry to some one else. But she couldn't stay away long enough to accomplish anything definite and permanent. Then suddenly a way was open.

What would Barry have said to her just now over the telephone if he knew what she had done? Today, after driving home in the sunset glow from Grandmother Vale's in happy and almost silent harmony, she could hardly meet his eyes when he said good-by. She had never concealed anything from Barry. But if she told him he would protest. Besides, perhaps her coup would prove but a futile lunge in the dark.

Rupert often asked Lisa's opinion on matters connected with his business. She possessed, at times, an intuitive insight which was of value. Several days ago he had written her that he and his associates were finding it difficult to decide whether to offer the management of the new branch in Chicago to Birchard or Raymond, both men connected with the New York office. The position required social attributes as well as business keenness. The man chosen would be immediately drawn into the inner circles of both Chicago's social and banking worlds. It was a big opportunity for either Birchard or Raymond. She knew both the men. To which would she offer the position?

Lisa, after deliberating for 12 hours, had taken her pen—her stiletto—in hand, and replied that she would offer the position to Barry Firth.

Lisa received a telegram from Rupert in the morning saying he was returning from Chicago the next day. She decided to meet him at the station. She wanted to learn the edict as soon as possible.

"A splendid suggestion of yours, Lisa," said Rupert, five minutes after he was seated beside her in the limousine. "Barry is just the man for the place. We hadn't thought of him because Birchard and Raymond both wanted the position. But Barry's better adapted. The others think so, too. I read them your letter. Very convincing. We want Barry to go out immediately. Next week if possible. We're telling him tomorrow. How are the children?"

"They're well," said Lisa quietly, looking out of the window. The lights blurred, swam.

"Why did you do it, Lisa," asked Barry, two days later. "Why did you do it? Why did you do it?" Three times he demanded before he gave her a chance to reply sitting by her in the library. "They're determined to have me go. When I hesitated, told them I'd rather not, they couldn't understand. Rupert read my letter. All those clearly stated arguments of yours, Lisa, sending me from you. Why did you do it?"

"You know, Barry," said Lisa, "I've told you a thousand times there's only one woman I want to marry."

It was no shock to Lisa to hear Barry speak in such specific terms so soon after Emma's death. He considered himself as bound to Lisa, by virtue of her trust in him, as he had to Emma, by virtue of the marriage ceremony. But it was not because he felt bound and from no sense of obligation that he spoke to Lisa so.

"And you can't marry her," said Lisa, slowly.

"Not now, I know. But sometime I can, perhaps. I'm going to wait for her, Lisa, if I have to wait 20 years."

"I simply can't let a man like you, so full of possibilities for happiness and for giving happiness to others, definitely demeaning himself in a secret devotion to a woman who can give him little in return."

"Demeaning himself?" protested Barry. "Little in return? I'd rather be a doorknocker in the house than here, where I am any I am demeaned, and who gives me little?"

His eyes were laughing, his manner brusque, bluff, rollicking, his mood insistent, not to be denied. Lisa at ways found it difficult to resist Barry when he was like this. "Take it back," he commanded, and possessed himself of both her hands. "Take it back or I'll—"

"I'll take it back."

He dropped her hands instantly. "I don't like your Chicago plan," he said. "I shall tell them tomorrow I can't go on, Barry," she said, and turned away.

"Does our engagement mean so little to you that you so lightly break it?" he asked, in a reproachful tone.

"Our engagement?"

"Yes, that's the way I look upon it. And have looked upon it ever since I have been free to pledge myself to any one."

"But I am not free."

"You will be some day."

Rupert was 20 years older than Lisa. Until today Barry had never referred to the possibility of Lisa's release through his death. He had supposed his own bondage would outlast Lisa's, but now twice within five minutes he had suggested Lisa's freedom.

She was aware of a vague sensation of shock, perhaps caused by a repressed desire of her own.

"I'd rather not speak of the possibility of my freedom, Barry. Or think of it, please."

"I understand. Forgive me." His voice was gentle. "But after all, why not Lisa? All I ask is the privilege of waiting for you in case you do become free—of waiting for you nearby, where I can see you occasionally, even though I wait all my life. Oh, do let me tell them I will not go to Chicago."

Lisa shook her head. "No. You must never pay any attention to any one as long as I am in the vicinity to be hurt by it. I know you. But it is not only for your sake I want you to go. It's for mine, too. It's better for me. I can't go on dreading for you as I have since Christmas, and be the sort of woman I want Fabia to be, and June. And lead the sort of life I want them to lead."

"I know no woman who performs her duty as a mother as well as you."

"Oh, Barry, you always say lovely things! But it isn't performing my duty when my conscience is troubling me."

"Is it troubling you?"

"Lately. Since Christmas especially. Why, Lisa, you never talked like this before!"

"I know. Because I didn't want to listen to my own arguments, I suppose. But I must now. I don't feel right lately even about my friends. I don't feel I deserve their opinion of me. I hate marching under false colors."

She rose, walked over to the window and stood looking out. Barry rose and followed her.

"Don't be ridiculous, Lisa. Don't talk nonsense!" he exclaimed roughly, brusquely, from behind her back. "You are not going to give me up."

"Yes, I am," she replied, turning and looking at him, and he saw that she meant it.

Had he said, instead, "For my sake I beg of you don't give me up." Had he cried out in distress, "I need you," he might have shaken her firm resolve that day. There was a vulnerable spot in Lisa's heart, of which Barry, in spite of his insight into her nature, was unaware. Often he touched the spot without intent or knowledge. The vulnerable spot was Barry's need of her. Rupert had never needed her except to fill a role. No man had ever needed her.

But today Barry did not touch the vulnerable spot. He had never capitalized his misfortune or played for sympathy's compass. He uttered no cry of pain to Lisa.

"Rupert said you would probably be leaving within a week," said Lisa.

"If I go."

"You must go. Our caring is getting too much for me lately. I'm afraid of it, Barry. Of it. I'll never let it hurt you. Try me again, Lisa. It was the nearest he came to pleading."

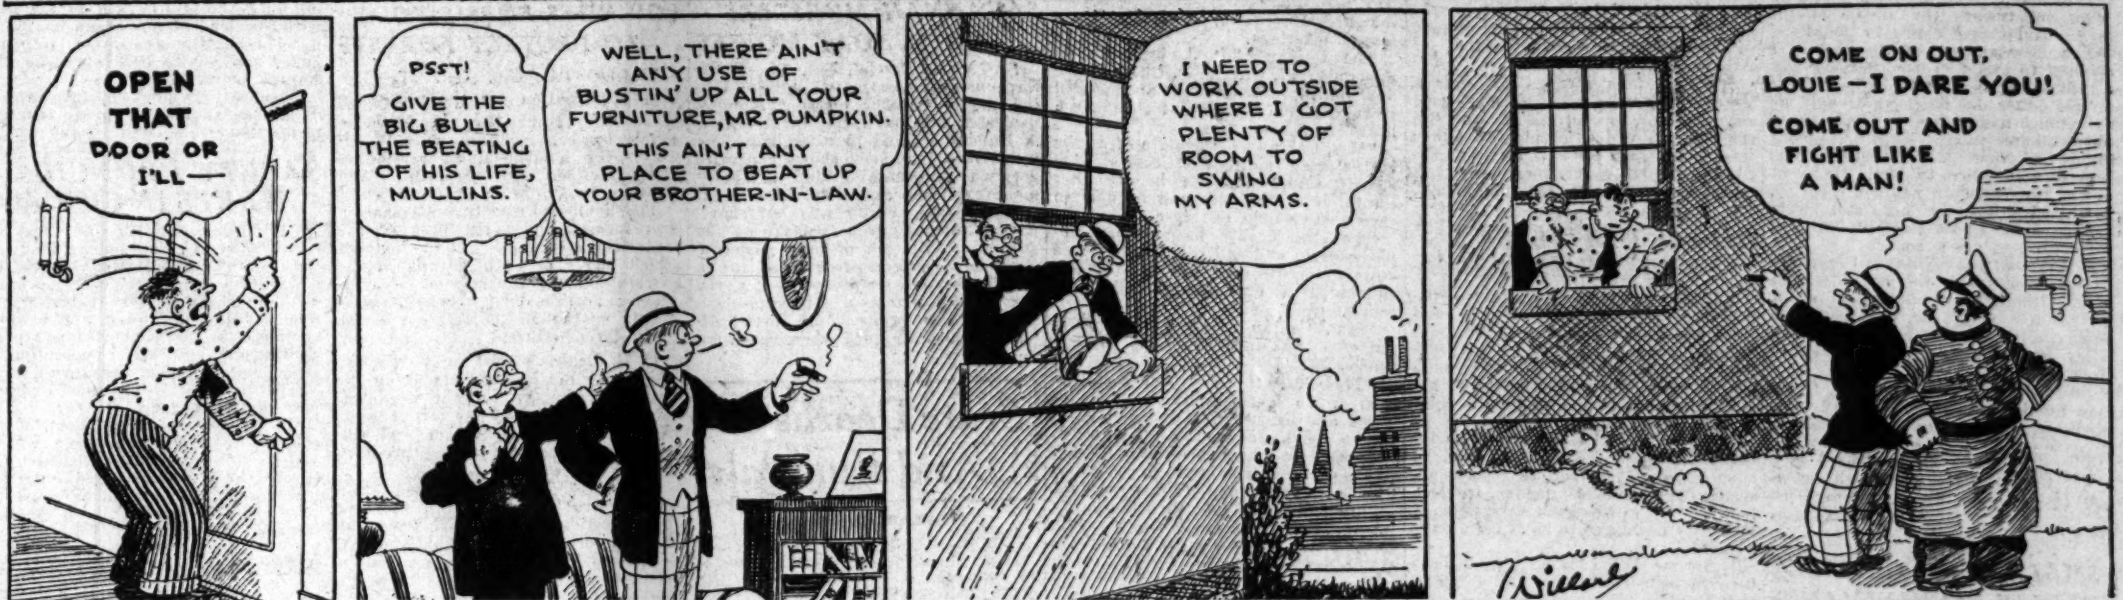

No. Please go before it is too late. Please go before what has been so beautiful to both of us becomes something to be regretted. It is my wish. Please go and save me, Barry. (Continued Tomorrow.)

JUNIOR LEAGUE JOTTINGS

BY MRS. HENRY W. GRADY JR.

Congratulations from the Junior League go today to Mrs. William Warren Jr. on the arrival of William Warren III on Saturday, October 11, at 3 o'clock.

A typical modern mother is Mrs. Warren, for as a Junior League chairman of the hospital committee she has put aside her duties as a mother only temporarily and will again be in command in a few weeks. This is the spirit that makes Mrs. W. C. Warren Jr. League wheels go around. May we have many more like her!

The Association of Junior Leagues of America is divided into seven regions and Atlanta and 33 other southern cities are in Region IV. On October 20, 21 and 22 this region will hold a conference in Chattanooga, Tenn., for the purpose of discussing the welfare work and the arts and interior programs of the Junior Leagues in this division, and of electing a new regional director, for which position Atlanta is proposing the name of Miss Margaret Nelson. We are sending six delegates to the conference. Mrs. Clark Howell Jr. will represent us at all the welfare discussions and Mrs. Reginald Fleet those devoted to arts and interests. Their four companions will be Mrs. Wiley Ballard, marionette chairman; Mrs. Turner Jones, magazine editor; Miss Catherine Norcross, first vice president, and Miss Ellen Newell, member of the board. They will not only find the conference most instructive but will have a delightful time socially, as many festive affairs have been planned by the Chattanooga hostesses. Here is a program of all the doings:

Tuesday, October 20—7 to 12 a. m., arrival of delegates, breakfast with hostesses; 9 to 12 a. m., registration at Junior League club room; 11 to 12 a. m., visit to children's hospital; 12:30 to 2 p. m., buffet luncheon, Minnehaha; 2 to 3 p. m., inspection of League charts and arts and interests exhibit at Chattanooga Golf and Country Club; 3 to 5 p. m., group meetings at Chattanooga Golf and Country Club; 8 p. m., A. J. L. A. dinner at the Read House.

Wednesday, October 21—9:30 to 12:30 a. m., group meetings; 1 to 2:30 p. m., luncheon at Hotel Patten; 2:30 to 4:30 p. m., meeting at Ashland Farm; 7:30 p. m., dinner in small groups at private homes; 9:10 to 10 p. m., supper, stunts and entertainment features at Hotel Patten.

Thursday, October 22—9:30 to 12:30 a. m., delegates' meeting at Chattanooga Golf and Country Club; 1 p. m., luncheon at Chattanooga Golf and Country Club. Afternoon given over to golf, sightseeing. Dinner with hostesses for delegates who do not leave until night trains.

We are proud that the Junior League is actively working for the Community Chest again this year. Mrs. Winfrey Ramsey, our corresponding secretary, is also secretary for the Chest, and Mrs. Humphrey Wagner, chairman of the advance gifts committee, has serving with her many Junior League girls. Her committee in full includes Mesdames Claude McGinnis Skarlat, F. W. Black, Bruce Woodruff, John Knox, Norman Elias, Glenville Gidding, Preston Arkwright, Walter Colquitt, Turner Jones, Reginald Fleet, Edwin Burke, Tanton Tunnell, Henry Grady Jr

Mrs. George Snow Is Hostess At Supper for Miss Moore

Mrs. George Snow will be hostess at a buffet supper at her home on Seventeenth street Friday evening, November 27, in honor of Miss Jacqueline Moore, one of the season's most popular debutantes. The guests will include a group of debutantes and their escorts, close friends of the honor guest. Mrs. Snow will be assisted in entertaining by her sub-daughter, Miss Eugenia Margaret Walker, who makes her home with Mrs. and Mrs. Snow. These attractive schoolgirls attend Washington Seminary.

Mrs. Richey To Preside Over B. and P. Meeting.

Mrs. Blanche S. Richey, second vice president of Business and Professional Women's Club, will preside at the meeting held Wednesday evening, October 14, at 6:15 o'clock at the Francis Virginia tea room. Mrs. Eleanor Raoul Greene will be speaker, and will stress the importance of women realizing and taking advantage of their duties as citizens and the vote. Miss Jennie Hopkins will give several book reviews. Miss Rebecca Shuman, chairman of the legislative committee, who is in charge of the program, will conduct a parliamentary law drill, illustrating some needed rules that are often not followed. Any business and professional women interested in these subjects may attend by making reservations with Miss Nell Chaney, Walnut 4806.

HATE IS BORN OF FEAR.

By Thornton W. Burgess.

Who greatly fears will soon or late find in his heart a burning hate.

—Old Mother Nature.

It always has been so, and probably always will be so. Fear comes first, and if it is long continued, or even if it is sudden and very great, it is almost always followed by hate, hate of the cause of the fear. It happened just this way to Kid Surefoot.

He had wandered off by himself, and at last stood on a little ledge admiring a wonderful view. It was as peaceful a scene as it was wonderful. Then in one little second all was changed. There had been a little puff of smoke among the rocks on the opposite slope, something terrible had happened, and now Kid Surefoot was looking at a strange and unknown fear had filled him, and almost without realizing what he was doing, he jumped behind a big rock, which was the wisest thing he could have done. There he stood trembling from head to foot, not knowing what to do, so wisely staying right where he was.

Now, when that hunter had shot at Kid Surefoot the sharp sound of his gun had echoed and re-echoed among the cliffs. It had brought Nanny Surefoot to her feet instantly, a great fear in her heart when she could see the Kid nowhere. At once she started looking for him, all intent on calling Billy Surefoot, but heard that gun and wasted no time in hurrying to rejoin his family.

Just then she heard a faint, pitiful bleat, and without thought of her own safety rushed to the spot. Billy, following, there behind a big rock, trembling with fright but alive and seemingly unharmed, was Kid Surefoot. Heedless of danger, she rushed to him. She had to cross an open space in view of that opposite slope where the hunter was hidden among the rocks. As she did so there was another sharp report and a little puff of smoke came from Nanny's back, but by a bullet from the terrible gun. Behind the rock with the Kid she was safe. But to get back out of sight of that hunter they had to cross that open space again.

Billy saw this. "Stay where you are until the way is clear," he commanded, and started to climb swiftly to a ledge higher up which commanded a full view of the place where the hunter lay hidden. He stepped out on the ledge and calmly looked down on the opposite slope. Of course, the hunter saw him instantly. He forgot Nanny and the Kid. Billy with his long beard, was the one he wanted. It was a long shot, but there was a chance, that he could get him. He aimed with the greater care, and fired. There was a little puff of smoke at Billy's feet and Billy moved a few steps, then he looked back. The hunter fired again, and this time Billy gave a little jump. Then he turned and rapidly climbed beyond range.

While this was going on Nanny had seen her chance to lead Kid Surefoot to safety. Now she was worried over Billy, and it was with a sigh of relief that she saw him coming to join them. There was a spot of red on one flank of his white coat. "Oh, my dear, you are hurt," she cried. "It is nothing," replied Billy, "but in fact it wasn't much more than a scratch. Now, you two follow me. When there are hunters with terrible firelocks, about the only thing you do is to climb where they cannot follow. So Billy led the way up, where the Kid had never been before and where no man could follow. He kept close to his mother's heels, and in his heart was such fear as he never had known before, and with it was hate—hate of the two-legged creature called Man, and his firelock.

ATLANTA, GA., TUESDAY MORNING, OCTOBER 13, 1931.

FIRST SPORTS EACH DAY

Jack Sharkey Fights Great Battle To Beat Giant Primo Carnera; Athens Accords Conquering Bulldogs Enthusiastic Welcome

NEW YORK CITY, Oct. 12.—Mr. Al Capone, the new banking laws and the war in China may be in the front page headlines, but you will find Georgia in the sports page heads, and all of them, in 24-point, or larger.

When Georgia drew 75,000 into the Yale bowl, it showed New York, which will not be shown until one does something in a big way. Here of late, Georgia has had its share of the heads, but this week finds them the reigning rage.

I am fully aware that this was the subject of the column on yesterday, but then today, while waiting for the Sharkey-Carnera fight hour to arrive, so that one could take the subway over, I counted the columns.

Paul Gallico, in the Daily News, wrote his column to prove that Yale lost because they were not quite as efficient when the mental processes were involved.

George Trevor, Dan Parker, Westbrook Pegler, and writers in the Tribune, World-Telegram and other New York dailies, bore down rather heavily on Georgia in the morning and afternoon papers of Monday.

There were more than eight columns of type devoted to Georgia in the seven papers I checked, and the total must have run well past that, as there were papers that went unchecked.

Harry Mehre and his assistants came in for some whole-hearted encomiums from the boys. New York is Georgia football-conscious today.

No other southern team has ever made the ten strike that the Georgia football team has made here in the east.

CATFISH SMITH IS THE BOY.

And Catfish Smith got as much publicity today, two days after the game, as did the Chinese war or the Hoover debt plan. It was Catfish Smith who won the writers up here.

His name is attractive, of course. Most everyone wants to see what he looks like, and when they see him they see a nice-looking young man who is a devil on the football field.

As I pointed out in the story of the game, there were two new heroes and one old one. Catfish Smith played a great game against New York University here last season, but never such a game as he played Saturday at the Yale bowl.

Come to think of it, the Catfish has been the boy who has been ruining Yale these many years. There was a story in the World-Telegram today which said that Yale must be happy now that Catfish Smith is gone. There was almost a column review of the game devoted to the part that Catfish Smith played.

It included the story of how he tackled Taylor so hard at the start of the second quarter that he dropped the ball, and Leathers caught it to run for a touchdown. The same story also recalls how Smith caught passes to beat Yale in 1929, and how he helped in 1930. And the headline said: "Catfish Gone—Yale Happy." And I guess Yale is, for the Catfish curse has certainly been on the big Blue team.

THE SHANGHAI GESTURE.

Quite a lot of the boys can't get over the gesture which Georgia made at the start of the game. Here was Yale with the starting line-up in there, Albie Booth excepted.

And what did Georgia do? Why the coaches sent in a second string line with just Captain Austie Downes and Spurgeon Chandler as the only regulars in the backfield. What sort of a gesture, they ask, is that for a small southern university to make toward the once mighty and majestic Yale?

There were really two games played, the Georgia second-stringers fumbled and Yale made a touchdown to beat them, 7 to 0. The Georgia varsity, playing two quarters, beat Yale, 26 to 0.

Yes, sir, the state of Georgia is plastered all over the public press today. And the football players are off-setting the poor publicity given the state by certain legislative acts, and the annual announcement that the teachers may not get paid.

So give us the key, mister, and let's sing glory to old Georgia's football team.

IN THE BOY BANDIT'S OFFICE.

When the door was opened into the office of James J. Johnston, affectionately known as "The Boy Bandit," who was sitting there but W. L. (Pa) Stribling.

"Pa," who is up here to see about some fights for W. L., and about his Miami contract to promote for the Garden, was looking better than ever. Pa was like an old fire horse who was back in harness again. He was in there where the big shots of the racket were gathering, and they were all talking with him. It was like old times.

Your correspondent, who was there to get a working press ticket to the fight, found Jimmy Johnston to be a keen-eyed, capable-looking man. In fact he would serve as a model for what the "quite smart" man really looks like in the big time fight racket.

He was happy at the weather. Today is Columbus Day and a holiday for most people up here, especially the Italians. And with Carnera on the card he was sure of his crowd.

A FIGHTER HIMSELF.

Jimmy Johnston used to be a fighter himself. He was contemporaneous with the Terrible Terry McGovern. Mr. Johnston's manager asked him if he cared to fight an unknown for $50.

"Who is this unknown?" Mr. Johnston asked. The fighter was pointed out to him.

"I've got $50," he said.

The unknown became Terry McGovern.

Later Mr. Johnston smartened up, as the boys say, and started managing fighters and promoting. He once turned down Jess Willard because he didn't look like a fighter.

And he still thinks Willard wasn't a fighter.

SHARKEY BEATS GIANT CARNERA IN GREAT FIGHT

Gob Floors Italian With Ripping Attack in Fourth Round.

By Ralph McGill.

RINGSIDE, EBBETS FIELD, NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—Jack Sharkey battered his way to a 15-round decision over Primo Carnera, the Italian heavyweight, here tonight in what was one of the greatest heavyweight fights in the history of the game.

In this battering defense of the American heavyweight championship Jack Sharkey hammered his way into the hearts of the stubborn ring worms who have booed and jeered him for years.

There was a mighty roar for him at the finish after he had driven the staggering Italian giant about the ring with a series of rights and lefts to the face and head in the fifteenth and final round.

"Go home, Ernie," he yelled to Ernie Schaff, heavyweight protégé of Sharkey, "and tell my wife."

There was a look of almost unbelievable happiness on the Boston gob's face as he looked around at the sea of feet and waving arms and heard the rising and falling crescendo of sound that lashed down from the packed grandstand balconies.

GREAT BATTLE.

What was expected to be another blot on the heavyweight game turned out to be one of the most spectacularly fought battles the game has had since Jack Dempsey was in there. The Italian superman there was definitely exploded but there was glory for the blood-smeared giant in the defeat. He had proved that he could take them on the body and jaw and still be there pawing away with his clumsy left. Carnera is a great trial horse but Sharkey is the better man. There was no doubt of that tonight. My tab gave Sharkey eight rounds, Carnera three and four even.

Sharkey fought a smart, cagey fight. He tried for eight rounds to build up his left. He kept taking some of the giant's left jabs, very good ones by the way, and all the while the giant's right was getting lower. It was not until the fifteenth round that Sharkey got him where he wanted him. Carnera's right guard kept getting lower and lower as Sharkey took the left jabs.

Sharkey had been using a sort of loop left hook. He had landed it in the fourth, scoring the only knockdown of the fight, one which brought about one of the usual contempts which nature all Sharkey fights. He knocked Carnera down. At the count of six Carnera started getting up. He was up off his knee at seven and wait for the count of nine. A fighter is automatically disqualified for going down without being hit.

GIANT BEWILDERED.

Sharkey yelled and grabbed the referee, Gunboat Smith, and pointed to Carnera. Carnera was standing in the center of the ring by this time with a simple, bewildered look on his face as Sharkey's complaint was made. Sharkey then whirled and started to leave out the ring but was shoved back by Johnny Buckley, his manager. The fight went on. Sharkey was a bit worried by the Italian's left but after the disappointment of the fourth round he did not again get a chance to use that left until the last round.

When the giant came out for that round he was evidently trying to land a left himself to win back some of the lost points. And then Sharkey, his lips set in a snarl about his opponent's mouthpiece, went leaping in, landed a left uppercut to the body, and the uppercut was almost a knockout. The uppercut went deep into the red-blotched stomach of Carnera. The giant's mouth opened wide and his eyes were filled with a look of anguish as he backed away. Sharkey came in, weaving and bobbing past a clumsy left hand that Carnera kept showing out. Sharkey dodged in under Carnera's jaw. He backed into Carnera's corner. By golly, you are a hell of a lot better fighter than they said you were," he said, as he slapped the big fellow's back. And Carnera grinned loosely with that simple, childish grin that is so well known. He knew he had lost.

And then the happy Sharkey came stepping back to his corner to be.

CROWD WANTS KAYO.

From the stands came a pleading roar. "Kill him, Jack! Kill him, Jack!" The Italian's hands were down. He tried mightily, with an obvious effort, and got the up. And then he weakly jabbed out his left but Sharkey came in again. He lashed out with his left, crouching like some billy of some towering beast. Carnera staggered under the rain of blows but weathered them somehow. And at the bell he was retreating and waving those big leather pillows at Sharkey as if he would keep him back by a gesture.

At the end Sharkey knew he had won. He was rushing over to Carnera's corner. "By golly, you are a hell of a lot better fighter than they said you were," he said, as he slapped the big fellow's back. And Carnera grinned loosely with that simple, childish grin that is so well known. He knew he had lost.

And then the happy Sharkey came stepping back to his corner to be.

Gob Wants Walker Or Loughran Next

By Ralph McGill.

NEW YORK, N. Y., Oct. 12.—Jack Sharkey, the vociferous sailor man from Boston, expressed himself tonight as being highly desirous of a match with Mickey Walker or Tommy Loughran before he takes on Max Schmeling in June—provided Schmeling will fight him.

The sailor man spoke his piece after he had finished reducing Primo Carnera, the man-mountain, to only a sizeable mole hill in their 15-round battle at Ebbets field.

Watch These Boys Next Saturday

Do you remember the boy on the left? It is none other than Tom Brown, Auburn fullback, who will be in the battle at the Flats Saturday afternoon when the Yellow Jackets take on the fighting Tigers. This is the same Brown that scored a touchdown against Tech here last season. Those Jackets will keep an eye on him Saturday. Johnny Branch, the Tarheel Terror, is shown on the right. Those Bulldogs who Saturday polished off Yale will have their hands full when they meet North Carolina University Saturday at Chapel Hill. Branch is something of a man-about-the-gridiron.

YATES APPEARS IN CHARITY TILT

Governor Roosevelt To Witness Warm Springs Exhibition Today.

Charlie Yates, Georgia's outstanding young golfer and the only player ever to win the Atlanta and state amateur crowns the same year, will be featured in an exhibition match at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon over the Warm Springs course. Yates will be paired with John Ridley, Atlanta amateur.

The simon-pures will play Fred Hoskins, professional at the Columbus Country Club, and Warren Mays, pro at the Warm Springs club.

It is a charity match and the proceeds will go to the national polio fund, a committee in their crusade against infantile paralysis.

It will be the first public appearance of Yates since he won the state and East Lake Country Club championships, and is expected to attract an unusually large crowd.

Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York, is general chairman of the aid committee, and will be one of the distinguished guests in the gallery. He has been at his Warm Springs home for several weeks, and the golf exhibition was arranged in his honor.

Rockne Memorial Drive Gets Under Way Tonight

Jack Cannon, Tech Coach, Has Charge of Campaign in Georgia.

The Knute Rockne memorial drive in Georgia will be officially launched tonight at the Atlanta Athletic Club at 7 o'clock when leaders in the movement gather to discuss the drive.

Jack Cannon, Georgia Tech's line coach and former Notre Dame All-American guard, is the national committee man for Georgia and will handle details of the drive throughout the state.

In addition to Cannon, other Atlantans who will be present tonight include W. A. Alexander and Professor A. H. Armstrong, of Georgia Tech, and representatives of all Atlanta newspapers.

The purpose of the drive is to erect a million dollar memorial to the great Notre Dame coach who was killed in an airplane crash last March. The memorial, which will be a magnificent fieldhouse on the Notre Dame campus, was conceived as a tribute to the memory of the great football leader who was idolized by millions.

Cannon announced yesterday that 15,000 envelopes with the words, "Rockne Memorial Donation," had been printed for distribution at Saturday's game between Tech and Georgia. The envelopes will be handed out at the gate. No stipulated sum is required, the amount of the gift being purely optional.

"We will appreciate any amount that may be inserted," Cannon said. The envelopes may be left with the gatekeeper on the way out.

Four thousand envelopes will be passed out at the Capitol theater this week where "The Spirit of Notre Dame" is running on the screen.

At Saturday's game tape will be blown and the Auburn and Tech hands will play the "Star-Spangled Banner" out of tribute to Rockne.

High school teams in the state also will be asked to join in the movement, Cannon stated.

Three of Rockne's former players will be at Saturday's game. They are Chet Wynne and Roger Riley, of Auburn, and Cannon, of Tech.

CHOCOLATE WINS.

TRENTON, N. J., Oct. 12.—(AP)—Kid Chocolate, Cuban negro lightweight, outpointed Steve Smith, of Bridgeport, Conn., in a 10-round bout here tonight. It was their third meeting and Chocolate's third straight victory over the New Englander.

Tech High and Erie Academy, of Erie, Pa., will follow at 7:30 o'clock Wednesday night at Spiller's and Boys' High and G. M. A. will top the card at 8:30 o'clock Friday night at Spiller's. Boys' High and G. M. A. will play the first of a "round robin" affair for the city prep championship. Decatur plays Commercial Friday night.

Marist, with a new and inexperienced team for the most part, will be out for a revenge at the hands of Russell High this afternoon. The East Point team won last year by a 25-to-0 score and will enter the game a favorite today.

In its only game thus far Marist defeated R. E. Lee, of Thomaston, 19 to 12 at Thomaston. Coach Joe Bean, of Marist, was not entirely satisfied with the play of his eleven and has made numerous changes since.

Russell High has defeated Powder Springs and Fulton High by one touchdown margin and their goal line has not been crossed.

Fearing to take chances with his players, Coach Tolbert sent Tech High through a long, light workout Monday afternoon in preparation for the Erie game Wednesday. The light work will be continued this afternoon with a long signal drill as the closing session. No attempt will be made to scrimmage, as Tech High played one of its hardest games last Friday night in defeating Riverside Military Academy, 33 to 7, and the team is not in the best of condition at present.

Eric Academy with two full teams, plus numerous reserves aboard will arrive in the city early today. They will hold a long workout this afternoon, which will consist mainly of signal running and a short punting and passing drill.

FATHER'S DEATH PREVENTS MEHRE JOINING SQUAD

Georgia's Warriors Back Home To Practice For Hard Game.

By Jimmy Jones.

Those roaming Georgia Bulldogs were back at their lessons yesterday following another first class job of debunking eastern football. After testing for one day the warm accolade of an enthusiastic and admiring Athens, the boys who were so magnificent in that big Yale bowl Saturday will go about their duties quietly today with the knowledge that Harry Mehre, their coach, will not be with them for another several days because of the death of his father last night in Huntington, Ind.

News of the passing of Mehre's father, whose illness summoned his son to his bedside last week, was received in an Associated Press dispatch last night.

Mehre will remain for the funeral. He may return to Athens in time to make the trip to Chapel Hill, N. C., with the team Saturday, however.

The Georgia coach yesterday informed H. J. Stegeman by fire that he was leaving immediately and planned to reach Athens some time today, provided his father's condition did not grow worse.

The Tarheels, who are Georgia's next rivals, showed flashes of real strength Saturday in holding Florida to a 0-0 tie.

Meanwhile, Harry Mehre, a capable and smiling lieutenant who was with the team at Yale, went ahead yesterday with tuning up the squad for the game with North Carolina, sending the Bulldogs through a light workout at Sanford field.

Mehre will not return in time to lend Enright a helping hand, but the team will carry on for its absent coach, its followers are assured.

CRACK OF DAWN.

The impertinent young men who wear the Red and Black returned home at the crack of dawn yesterday morning to be literally rushed off their feet by an enthusiastic mob of students and citizens, while the blare of Georgia's 50-piece band informed the entire municipality that the heroes had arrived.

Sleepy inhabitants dashed madly for the station, tying on their neckties, if any, as they ran, to get in on the band pumping.

That was some feat those youthful Georgians pulled Saturday in ruthlessly filling Old Man Eli under the chin at Yale line Saturday while Dr. Mal Stevens was burning down on the line, and leaving him a somewhat tattered and rheumatic figure, sitting there kersnack in the middle of that empty Yale Bowl with a rebel yell ringing mockingly in his ears.

Athens was not slow to pay tribute to such a victory, and poured out its greetings in a bubbling flow of good fellowship.

FINE RECEPTION.

And after they had been ranked off their Pullmans by the warm, impulsive hands of the undergrads who stayed at home, they went to Costa's where a hot breakfast awaited them. There is nothing like a welcome such as southerners give a home football team when they set out to do the job right.

Jimmy Stoinoff, capable reserve fullback who has a sprained ankle that will keep him out of action for possibly three weeks, was the only casualty on the squad as the boys rolled out in uniform again yesterday afternoon.

But Lloyd Gilmore, the fiddlin' Nero who fiddled his way through that Yale line Saturday while Dr. Mal Stevens was burning down on the line, showed that he is not only a coming fullback, but has already arrived. He and Jack Bohms and Jodie White should hold things down until Stoinoff gets on his two feet again.

RICH MEMORY.

In handling Yale's third hard bump in as many years before the front forms on the pumpkin, that backfield of Downes, Dickens, Chandler and Roberts will have something to tell their grandchildren in years to come. Provided, of course, there are grandchildren. Their three years as varsity players will be rich with the memory of having conspired to overthrow the mighty Blue hosts three times in a row.

A dip into history reveals that since Georgia's relations began with Yale in 1923, the southern Bulldogs have been improving steadily in their games with the Blue. In 1923, occasion of the first game, Yale won in a romp, 40-0, but a triumph over the Georgia has scored on their high-falutin' eastern friends.

Things started looking up for Georgia in 1924 when Yale barely won, 7-6. J. D. Thomson, of Columbus, rammed over the Georgia touchdown. Last Saturday another Columbus boy, Bert Homey Key, was the hero with two touchdowns.

In 1927 Georgia won her first game over Yale, 14-10, when that backfield of McCreary, Dudley, Hooks, Johnson and those two great ends, Nash and Shiver, were at their peak.

CATFISH HERO.

In 1929 Catfish Smith was the hero of the 15-0 triumph at Athens. The plonk-eyed end scored two touchdowns by falling on a blocked punt for one, and taking a pass from Chandler for the other. He placed that punt out

Coach Mehre's Father Passes at Huntington
